China’s Shandong province reports 2 anthrax cases

BEIJING: The city of Binzhou, in China's Shandong province, has reported two anthrax cases, including one death, the local health commission said. On August 6, Binzhou reported a suspected anthrax case, and the patient died on the same day, Xinhua news agency quoted Kou Zengqiang from the Shandong Provincial Center for Disease Control and Prevention, as saying on Wednesday. An epidemiological investigation has identified the cause of the disease as anthrax. The deceased was a 14-year-old student from Yangxin County, Binzhou.

AF FALLOUT EU pushes for more autonomy

European ministers, NATO and UN officials meet in Slovenia to look at ways to improve the bloc's operational engagement

Taliban fighters atop Humvee vehicles parade along a road to celebrate after the US pulled all its troops out of Afghanistan.

Still reeling from the European Union's short-comings in Afghanistan, officials from the 27-nation bloc met on Thursday to discuss ways to improve their response to future crises and not be so reliant on the U.S. European ministers of defense and foreign affairs gathered in Slovenia for talks also involving NATO and UN officials to look at ways to improve the bloc's operational engagement and develop a rapid response force capable of operating in difficult military theaters. Ministers will discuss plans for the so-called strategic compass, a document aiming at harmonizing crisis management and defining defense ambitions for the bloc that is expected to be drafted before the end of the year. "It's clear that the need for more European defense has never been as much as evident as today after the events in Afghanistan," EU foreign policy chief Josep Borrell said upon his arrival. "There are events that catalyze the history," he said. "Sometimes something happens that pushes the history, it creates a breakthrough and I think the Afghanistan events of this summer are one of these cases." The Taliban's takeover of Afghanistan and the rushed airlift operation out of the country that followed the U.S. decision to pull out from the country have laid bare the EU's dependency on its ally. Without American support, European countries wouldn't have been able to guarantee the safe passage of their citizens or even their troops out of the war-torn country. "The strategic situation, the geostrategic changes, show that now we need a stronger Europe," said Claudio Graziano, the chairman of the EU military committee. "The situation in Afghanistan, Libya, Middle East, Sahel, show that now it's the time to act starting with the creation of a rapid European entry force able to show the will of the European Union to act as a global strategic partner: When if not now, later would be late."

US destroys planes, copters at airport Taliban feel betrayed

AGENCIES
Kabul
Taliban fighters have been left feeling 'angry' and 'betrayed' after discovering the US had disabled military helicopters and planes at Kabul's Hamid Karzai International Airport before their departure from Kabul. Anas Haqqani, a key Taliban member, visited the Kabul airport a day after the last American soldier left Afghanistan, and said the US had deliberately destroyed military equipment including helicopters, military vehicles, and facilities, Ariana News reported. "For years they called us destroyers. But now you are witnessing those who are destroyers. They have destroyed our national assets," Haqqani said. The last flight carrying American forces left Kabul in the early hours of Tuesday morning A- ending 20 years of military presence in the country. Videos shared on social media show that dozens of vehicles, helicopters, military equipment, and facilities at the Kabul Airport have been destroyed, the report said. A member of the Taliban stated: "We are trying to get the airport ready to use and operational. This is what all leaders of the Emirate want. "The important point is that invaders never managed to last in Afghanistan. The invaders have been defeated at all times (in history). This is a reality that the Americans were defeated and they withdrew."

Pak shuts border crossing with Af

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan on Thursday temporarily closed a key border crossing with Afghanistan, apparently due to fear of the influx of refugees eager to leave their homeland after the Taliban seized power last month. Chaman border crossing - the second-largest commercial border point with Afghanistan after the Torkham commercial town in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa - has been closed due to security threats, Geo News reported, citing sources. Earlier in the day, Interior Minister Sheikh Rashid Ahmed had said that the Chaman crossing may be closed for some days due to security threats. "We will be closing the Chaman crossing for a while," he said, without specifying how long the border would be shut. He said there was calm in and around the border.

US: Death toll rises after Ida’s remnants hit Northeast

The remnants of Hurricane Ida dumped historic rain over New York City, with at least nine deaths linked to flooding in the region, as it swamped subway cars and submerged vehicles and homes. Catastrophic weather came to the largest city in the US after a grim two weeks across the nation that has seen 20 dead in flooding in a small Tennessee town, wildfires threatening Lake Tahoe, Tropical Storm Henri in the Northeast and Ida's landfall in Louisiana, which left 1 million people without power, maybe for weeks. Late Wednesday evening a state of emergency was declared in New York City and the rest of the state. Ida's remnants were exiting the country, but not without tornadoes in other parts of the Northeast. At least nine deaths were reported in New York City and New Jersey. A New York City police spokesperson says a total of eight people died when they became trapped in flooded basements.

No rush to recognise Taliban: US

WASHINGTON: There is no rush to recognise the Taliban either by the United States or many of the countries that it has spoken to, the White House said asserting that such a move would be dependent on what they deliver on the expectations of the global community. "There's no rush to recognition from the United States or any country we have spoken with around the world. It will be very dependent on their behaviour and whether they deliver on what the expectations are of the global community," White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki told reporters at her daily news conference on Wednesday.

Such a move would be dependent on what they deliver on the expectations of the global community

Al-Qaeda joins Taliban in attack on Panjshir valley

The Al-Qaeda has joined the Taliban in the groups offensive in the Panjshir valley, Ahmad Massoud's forces say, Al Arabiya reported. Earlier reports on Wednesday had said that fighting is ongoing between Taliban fighters and the forces of a resistance front lead by Ahmad Massoud in Panjshir province. Residents at the front lines in the Nasaji-Gulbahar area, which is just outside of Panjshir valley, said on Wednesday that the fighting resumed on Tuesday night and is still ongoing. According to locals, most of the people have fled the area, the report said.
