Tata Steel Europe: From gloom to boom

After struggling for more than a decade, a rally in steel prices could mean a turnaround

ISHITA AYAN DUTT
Kolkata, 2 December

The year 2007 was special for Tata Steel as it turned 100. But for B Muthuraman, then managing director, what added zing to the celebration was the £6.2-billion acquisition of Corus months earlier.

Before the acquisition, Muthuraman said, he wasn't too excited about the centenary celebrations. "There was something missing...one has to earn a celebration," he had said in a speech to a gathering of employees and guests at Jamshedpur to mark the centenary.

The demand for steel was booming then and companies wanted a larger pie of the market. The Anglo-Dutch steelmaker, Corus, fit into Tata Steel's long-term expansion strategy.

It was all good until the global financial crisis in 2008-2009 sent assumptions for the acquisition — what was India's largest cross-border acquisition — into a tailspin as steel prices crashed from $600 a tonne to $400 a tonne. And for most of the years that followed, Europe has been a struggle for Tata Steel.

But the current rally in steel prices could well make FY22 a turnaround year for Tata Steel Europe (TSE).

TSE's EBITDA for the current financial year is projected to be one of the best on account of operating performance, comparable with the commodity boom witnessed in 2007-08 when it recorded an EBITDA of around £1 billion.

In a recent interview with Business Standard, Tata Steel Executive Director and Chief Financial Officer Koushik Chatterjee said Tata Steel Europe will see one of the best years in terms of EBITDA on account of its operating performance this year.

The context was performance in Q2FY22 — one of the best in a quarter — and Chatterjee was responding to a question on the outlook for Europe (see table: "Metal mettle"). Some brokerages are estimating an EBITDA of more than ₹12,000 crore for the current financial year.

"We are projecting an EBITDA of ₹12,260 crore and EBITDA/tonne of $181 for FY22," said Amit Dixit, director-institutional equities, Edelweiss Securities.

Chances are that realisations in H2 will be higher. "Contracts being negotiated for CY22 are at higher prices as they are being negotiated against the current backdrop of elevated spot prices," Dixit pointed out.

232" — 25 per cent tariffs by the US while allowing limited volumes of steel from the European Union — should also augur well for TSE, which used to export about 1 million tonne.

But what makes the current projections look impressive

EBITDA; it reflects market spreads and the underlying efficiency of the business. It vindicated the actions taken in the last decade," sources pointed out.

Over the last decade or more, Tata Steel sold off what it felt was the unsustainable part, which included a number of units in the UK.

In 2011, it sold Teesside Cast Products to Sahaviriya Steel of Thailand for $467 million; in 2016, Scunthorpe was sold to Greybull Capital, reportedly for a token amount; in 2017, the specialty steel business was sold to Liberty House for £100 million.

TSE has two primary steelmaking units: Ijmuiden, the Netherlands, and Port Talbot, Wales; the UK has been mostly a drag.

But Tata Steel's woes have also been linked to subdued market movements in Europe. Steel consumption in Europe has remained weak for over a decade till the calendar year (CY) 2020, pointed out ICRA Senior Vice President Jayanta Roy. "Apparent consumption in Europe declined by almost 25 per cent between CY2008 and CY2020 as against an over 55 per cent growth in the rest of the world over the same time, driven by the growth in countries including China and India," he said.

However, during the current financial year, steel prices in Europe remained buoyant on the back of an economic recovery, restocking requirements and supply chain disruptions.

"Tata Steel's European steel business will benefit from this upturn, with an expected EBITDA comparable to that of FY2008, even though its steel capacity there has almost halved during this period," Roy added.

The market in Europe is also turning over a new leaf. "We are looking at a new phase where prices in Europe and the US would be decoupled from China," said Dixit of Edelweiss.

Price trends reflect this. In the last three to six months, international prices have corrected from peak levels. But the fall in China due to weak demand is much sharper at about 26 per cent compared to Europe at 16 per cent over the last six months; in the US, prices were up by 26 per cent in the same period.

Moreover, the price increase over the past year in the US and Europe has also been much higher compared to China.

Multiple factors may prevent a major downside in prices in Europe. "The European Commission adopted definitive safeguard measures on steel imports from 2019, which were subsequently extended for three years until June 30, 2024. An additional duty of 25 per cent is due on imports that exceed the quotas," said Vivek Kamra, man-

The removal of "Section 232" — 25 per cent tariffs by the US while allowing limited volumes of steel from the European Union — should also augur well for TSE aging director, Alvarez & Marsal. The UK followed suit post Brexit.

In addition, the Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) will come into effect from 2023. "Which means that from 2023 to 2026, exporters to the EU need to start reporting their emissions. This reporting needs to be done by the importer. From 2026, there will be a tax on imports, which will depend on the actual footprint of the producer and the carbon cost that will be incurred by an equivalent producer in the EU," Kamra explained.

Moreover, about 60 per cent of steel in Europe is produced through the blast-furnace route (90 per cent for flat steel). So, European Union steel players in addition to seeking significant external support will need to protect their margins to enable the investments in transitioning to more emission friendly steel-making, Kamra pointed out.

But without relying on what the market provides, there is an effort to make TSE weatherproof, irrespective of the cycle.

A "Transformation" programme is underway to improve performance and make the business more sustainable. Plus, the separation of UK and the Netherlands businesses with focused management teams is expected to improve cost efficiencies and profitability margins.

So, is TSE out of the woods? The next two quarters may hold out more definite answers.

Roughly one in every 100 patients hospitalised with Covid-19 will likely have central nervous system complications, researchers reported on Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Radiological Society of North America.

Among nearly 38,000 patients hospitalised with Covid-19 in the United States and Europe, symptoms led doctors to suspect brain complications in about 11 per cent. Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) and computed tomography (CT) exams confirmed central nervous system abnormalities that were most likely associated with the virus in 10 per cent of those patients, for an overall incidence of 1.2 per cent.

The most common finding was stroke due to clogged arteries, but the researchers also saw bleeding in the brain, inflammation of the brain, and other potentially fatal complications.

Study leader Scott Faro of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia said in a statement that while the lung problems related to Covid-19 are well recognised, "our study shows that central nervous system complications represent a significant cause of morbidity and mortality in this devastating pandemic."

Assessing the case for a legal MSP

Greater clarity on its precise connotation could help resolve the continuing standoff between the government and farmers

MIHIR SHAH

The year-long standoff between the government and the farmers ended with the decision to repeal the three farm laws. However, there is now a new bone of contention: the demand for a legally guaranteed Minimum Support Price (MSP). To understand the thinking behind the demand, we must recognise the fact that due to characteristics unique to farming, market failure is rampant in agriculture. Which means that unregulated free markets throw up outcomes that are detrimental to both farmers and consumers. The seasonality of farm production means that the vast majority of farmers (who lack the resources to store their crop) come to the market at the same time. During a bumper harvest, while prices fall, the resulting rise in demand is not enough to salvage incomes, especially for those producing food crops. Being basic necessities of life, the demand for food crops is typically price inelastic, which means consumers will not demand very much more, even when prices fall. And unlike industrial producers who can make profits even as prices fall, by cutting unit costs, in agriculture, uncertainties of the weather and limitations of soil fertility and water availability imply that increasing returns to scale are very difficult to achieve for most farmers. Thus, in bumper harvests, farm revenues necessarily decline for the vast majority of India's small and marginal farmers. Correspondingly, for poor consumers, unregulated markets for foodgrains mean that during a drought they either starve or get pauperised, being forced to buy very expensive commodities, conveniently hoarded by traders.

This is precisely the reason why, to protect both farmers and consumers, the state has intervened in agricultural markets for at least 50 years

now. The idea was that as farm output rises with the Green Revolution (GR), farmers must be assured that their surplus would be bought by the government at an MSP that is high enough to leave them a margin, after covering their costs. The crops procured were then made available to consumers at subsidised rates through the Public Distribution System (PDS). Thus, government intervention protected farmers during bumper crops and dipped into the buffer stock so developed to protect consumers during droughts.

The problem, however, is that the MSP regime has been narrowly focused on rice and wheat, and has worked in only a few regions of the country, covering a very small proportion of farmers. This is the impulse behind the demand for a legally guaranteed MSP. It is argued that only a legal guarantee will ensure that the government walks its talk by actually procuring the crops for which it announces MSPs. In the absence of which, the announcement of MSPs for 23 crops every year is reduced to a token ritual, with little benefit to most farmers. How many tribal areas and farmers, for example, are covered under the MSP regime?

There is also a powerful ecological and nutritional case for the demand. Since the Green Revolution, India has moved towards a monocultural regime, which has greatly impaired resilience of farm systems in multiple ways. Around 90 per cent of India's water is consumed in farming and of this 80 per cent is used up by rice, wheat and sugarcane. Farmers continue to grow these water-intensive crops even in water-short regions primarily because of an assured market — for rice and wheat in the form of public procurement. This only aggravates the water crisis.

Cropping patterns need to be diversified to include a variety of millets (rightly called "nutri-cereals" now), pulses and oilseeds, which are better suited to the agro-ecology of each region. To incentivise farmers to make this change, governments must include them in procurement operations. The locally procured crops should then be incorporated into anganwadi supplementary nutrition and school mid-day meal programmes.

This would mean a large and steady market for farmers, while also making a huge contribution to tackling India's twin syndemic of malnutrition and diabetes, since these crops have a much lower glycemic index, while providing higher content of dietary fibre, vitamins, minerals, protein and antioxidants.

The case for expanding and diversifying MSP-based public procurement is, therefore, well-established. The only question is: what is the best route to achieving this goal? And what exactly do we mean by a legal MSP? Clearly if this were to imply nationalisation of farm trade, where the government buys all farm produce, it would be an unmitigated disaster. A punitive regime would be very hard to implement and end up becoming counter-productive, with the possibility that farmers may find no buyers if traders refuse to buy at the legal MSP.

The Mahatma Gandhi

National Rural Employment Act (MGNREGA) could provide some answers. An intervention in the labour market, which, left to its own devices, was resulting in terrible exploitation of the rural poor, the MGNREGA does not guarantee 365 days of work to every person who seeks work. The legal guarantee is for 100 days per family per year, around one-tenth of the former. But even such a small intervention has resulted in the tightening of the labour market, with rural wages and livelihood security improving. Something very similar can be done through the 2018 PM-AASHA scheme, wherein 25 per cent of the production for the season is to be procured by the government (to be expanded up to 40 per cent, if the commodity is part of the PDS). The "deficit price payment" mechanism can also play a crucial role, where the government pays the farmer the gap between market prices and MSP. Thus, a legal MSP must be backed by a programme with requisite resources (like MGNREGA) and a time-frame within which governments would expand and diversify their procurement portfolios, in line with agro-ecology.

Of course, farmers and the government must recognise that merely reforming the MSP regime will not resolve the farm crisis. In a forthcoming paper in the journal Ecology, Economy and Society, I have outlined multiple barriers to be dismantled, without which sustainable prosperity will remain a distant dream for India's farmers: correcting uneven regional distribution of investments, which has led to the neglect of India's drylands; moving away from commodity-centric R&D towards a whole systems understanding of farming; altering the pattern of subsidies that is overwhelmingly biased in favour of chemical inputs; taking the understanding of soils beyond narrow GR thinking; strengthening the legal and regulatory framework governing chemical inputs; making massive investments in post-harvest infrastructure to support safe and nutritious food; and bringing agriculture education out of the 50-year-old outmoded GR paradigm. It is my sincere hope that both the government and farmers, drawing the right lessons from the long experience of the Green Revolution, will work together to move India towards this new paradigm of agro-ecological farming.

छत्रपती सहकारी साखर कारखान्याचे माजी अध्यक्ष मारुतीराव चोपडे कालवश

पुणे, दि.२ (हिंदुस्थान समाचार) : श्री छत्रपती सहकारी साखर

कारखान्याचे माजी अध्यक्ष मारुतीराव धोंडीबा चोपडे (भाऊ) यांचे निधन झाले. ते ८७ वर्षांचे होते. त्यांच्या पश्चात पत्नी, पाच मुले, सुना, नातवंडे असा परिवार आहे. बारामती तालुक्यातील ठेकठवाडी ति्यांचे मूळ गाव आहे. पिळकरी मिश्रा, भद्रदार शरीरारप्टी आणि बोलण्यातील करारीपणा हे मारुतरावांचे वैशिष्ट्य होते.

आठ दिवसांपूर्वी त्यांना आधुनिकायूवा इन्टका आला. त्यानंतर त्यांना पुण्यात उपचारासाठी दाखल करण्यात आले होते. उपचारादरम्यान बुधवारी रात्री त्यांची प्रचण्डीत मालवली. त्यांना सामाजिक व राजकीय कार्याची आवड होती. त्यामुळे ते शेवटपर्यंत सामाजिक कार्यात आणि राजकीय क्षेत्रात सक्रीय होते.

सहकार आणि राजकीय क्षेत्रातील कारकीर्द

चोपडे यांनी सहकार क्षेत्रात दीर्घ कारकीर्द अनुभवली. चोपडे यांनी छत्रपती साखर कारखान्याची अध्यक्षपदाची धुरा १९७३-७८ या कालावधीत सांभाळली होती. शिवाय याच कारखान्याचे त प्रदीर्घ काळ (२०१५ पर्यंत) संचालकही होते. एकाच सहकारी साखर कारखान्याचे तब्बल ४० वर्षे संचालक असण्याची बहुदा सहकारी बहुराजकीयता एकमेव व्यक्ती असावी. या काळात कामगार आणि सभासदांना न्याय देण्याचे काम केले. सोबतच कारखाना आणि बँकेच्या माध्यमातून त्यांनी शेतकऱ्यांचे अनेक प्रश्न मार्गी लावले. दरम्यान ते बारामती, इंदापूर सुपरवायझर युनियनचे ते माजी अध्यक्ष आणि विद्यमान संचालक होते. चोपडे यांनी १९८० मध्ये भारतीय इंदिरा काँग्रेसच्या वतीने बारामती विधानसभा मतदार संघाची निवडणूक लढवली होती. त्यावेळ त्यांच्या पंचारासाठी इंदिरा गांधी यांनी सभा घेतली होती. त्यानंतर अखून पवार कुटुंबाशी जवळीक साधली.
