- 2. Our Company requires significant amount of working capital for a continued growth. Our inability to meet our working capital requirements may have an adverse effect on our results of operations.*

Our business is working capital intensive primarily on account of high debtor days and inventory levels. A significant portion of our working capital is utilized towards trade receivables and inventories. Summary of our working capital position is given below:-

Working Capital (A-B)	173.10	96.99	60.07	14.56	3.56
Inventories as % of total current assets	55.46%	48.19%	48.39 %	41.91 %	41.35 %
Trade receivables as % of total current assets	28.46 %	42.63 %	37.16 %	45.83 %	44.94 %

Our Company intends to continue growing by expanding our operations. All these factors may result in increase in the quantum of current assets. Our inability to maintain sufficient cash flow, credit facility and other sources of fund, in a timely manner, or at all, to meet the requirement of working capital or pay out debts, could adversely affect our financial condition and result of our operations. For further details regarding working capital requirement, please refer to the chapter titled “Objects of the Issue” beginning on page 99 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

3. We face challenge in sourcing rigs and support equipments. Further any significant increase in the prices or decrease in the availability of these rigs and support equipments may adversely affect our results of operations.

Our main asset is drilling rigs. We generally obtain these rigs from domestic supplier or these rigs are imported depending upon the availability. As on date we do not have any long term tie up or agreements for supply of these drilling rigs. Though we keep assessing our requirements in terms of sourcing rigs and support equipments, any decrease in the availability of these rigs and support equipments for whatever reason could adversely affect on our ability to provide services. Further, any price volatility of these rigs and support equipment and our inability to adjust to the same could adversely affect our results of operations and profitability.

4. We rely on government-owned and government-controlled entities for our work orders. Political or financial pressures may cause a decrease in Government spending on public sector projects which could adversely affect our growth.

Few of our projects have been awarded by government-owned or government-controlled entities and, therefore, may be subject to political or financial pressures that may lead to such agreements being restructured or renegotiated by these entities, which could materially and adversely affect our business and results of operations. Over the years, we have developed clients across all segments whether public or private. However, government-owned or government-controlled projects are often prone to delays. Such delays could be on account of a change in the Central and/or State government, changes in policies impacting the public at large, scaling back of government policies or initiatives, changes in governmental or external budgetary allocation, or insufficiency of funds, which can significantly and adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations.

5. Projects included in our Order Book may be delayed, cancelled or not fully paid for by our clients, which could materially harm our cash flow position and revenues.

Our Order Book does not necessarily indicate future earnings related to the performance of that project. We may also encounter problems executing the project as ordered, or executing it on a timely basis. Moreover, factors beyond our control or the control of our clients may postpone a project or cause its cancellation, including delays or failures to obtain necessary permits, authorizations, permissions, right-of-way, and other types of difficulties or obstructions. Due to the possibility of cancellations or changes in scope and schedule of projects, as a result of exercises of our clients' discretion, problems we encounter in project execution, or reasons outside our control or the control of our clients, we cannot predict with certainty when, if or to what extent an Order Book project will be performed. Delays in the completion of projects can lead to clients delaying or refusing to make payment to us of some or all of the amounts we expect to be paid in respect of the project. Even relatively short delays or surmountable difficulties in the execution of a project could result in our failure to receive, on a timely basis or at all, the final payments due to us on a project. These payments often represent an important portion of the margin we expect to earn on a project. In addition, even where a project proceeds as scheduled, it is possible that the contracting parties may default or otherwise fail to pay amounts owed. Any delay, reduction in scope, cancellation, execution difficulty, payment postponement or payment default in regard to Order Book projects or any other uncompleted projects, or disputes with clients in respect of any of the foregoing, could materially harm the cash flow position, revenues and earnings of our Company. Further, litigations affecting the existing or future projects may also affect our Order Book position.

6. Our inability to qualify for or win large contracts and compete with other engineering companies could adversely affect our margins and results of operations.

Substantially, our contracts are obtained through competitive bidding process. Pre-qualification is pre-requisite to our winning most projects. In selecting contractors for such projects, clients generally limit the tender to contractors they have pre-qualified based on several criteria, including technical ability, past performance, financial strength and the size of previous contracts executed in similar projects, although the price competitiveness of the bid is usually the most important selection criterion. We are currently qualified to bid for projects up to certain values commensurate with our track record of previously completed projects and current net worth vis-a-vis the project size and required net worth considered appropriate by the client, and therefore may not be able to compete with other engineering companies for larger, higher-value projects, on our own or find suitable joint venture partners. Our ability to bid for and win larger value projects is dependent on our ability to find suitable joint venture partners. Any inability to qualify for and win large contracts and compete with other engineering companies could adversely affect our margins and results of operations.

7. We engage sub-contractors to execute some of our projects. Any delay on their part in executing the orders could affect our reputation and results of operations.

We may rely on sub-contractors for the implementation of some of our projects. For such projects, we generally enter into several arrangements with such sub-contractors. Accordingly, the timing and quality of our projects depend on the availability and skill of those sub-contractors. Although we believe that our relationships with our sub-contractors are cordial, we cannot assure that such subcontractors will continue to be available at reasonable rates and in the areas in which we execute our projects. If some of these agencies do not complete the orders timely or satisfactorily, our reputation and results of operations could be adversely affected.

8. We may not be selected for any of the projects for which we have submitted a bid which may affect our financial condition.

There are certain proposed projects for which we have submitted financial bids or we have been qualified to submit a financial bid. We cannot assure you that where we have been qualified to submit a financial bid or that our financial bids, when submitted or if already submitted, would be accepted. Further, there might be delays in the bid selection process owing to a variety of reasons which may be outside our control and our bids, once selected may not be finalized within the expected time frame which may affect our financial condition.

9. Our project completion depends on effective and efficient project management capabilities. Any adverse change in our project management capabilities could affect our ability to complete projects on a timely basis or at all, which may cause us to incur liquidated damages for time overruns pursuant to our contracts.

Our business depends on the proper and timely management of our projects. Although, we focus on project management in a number of ways, including by appointing project managers, ineffective or inefficient project management could increase our costs and expenses, and thus materially and adversely affect our profitability. Further, in our contracts our clients may be required to obtain statutory approvals before executing the operations and if they are not obtained then the project execution may be delayed. In case we are unable to meet the performance criteria as prescribed by the clients and if liquidated damages are levied which may extend Upto 10% of the contract price, our financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

10. We have limited control over the award of new contracts and the timing of client payments, which can cause significant variations in our results of operations and cash flows from period to period.

As our income is generated from contracts and the timing of new project awards and their commencement can vary significantly, our results of operations and cash flow may be subject to significant periodic fluctuations. It is generally very difficult to predict whether or when we will receive such awards as these contracts frequently involve a lengthy and complex bidding and selection process which is affected by a number of factors, such as market conditions, governmental approvals and project specific dynamics. As a substantial majority of our income is generated from contracts, our results of operations and cash flow may fluctuate significantly from quarter to quarter depending on the timing of our contract awards.

11. Our Company has negative cash flows from its operating activities investing activities and financing activities in the past years, details of which are given below. Sustained negative cash flows could impact our growth and business.

Our Company had negative cash flows from our operating activities, investing activities and Financing activities in the previous year(s) as per the Restated Financial Statements and the same are summarized as under:

Amount in Lakhs

Particulars	For The Year Ended March 31,
-------------	------------------------------

	September 30, 2017	2017	2016	2015	2014	2013
Cash Flow from / (used in) Operating Activities	(321.41)	1688.26	1815.87	1067.17	789.25	657.79
Cash Flow from / (used in) Investing Activities	(96.66)	(2748.78)	(1261.91)	(360.08)	(105.23)	(2141.04)
Cash Flow from / (used in) Financing Activities	589.98	1263.61	(574.60)	(755.45)	(562.92)	1573.28

Cash flow of a Company is a key indicator to show the extent of cash generated from operations to meet capital expenditure, pay dividends, repay loans and make new investments without raising finance from external resources. If we are not able to generate sufficient cash flows in future, it may adversely affect our business and financial operations.

We also operate in a rapidly consolidating industry. The strength of combined companies could affect our competitive position in all of our business areas. Furthermore, if one of our competitors or their customers acquires any of our customers or suppliers, we may lose business from the customer or lose a supplier of a critical raw material, which may adversely affect our business, results of operations and financial condition.

12. Certain portion of IPO Proceeds will be used to repay unsecured loan from one of our Promoter Group, Ekam Leasing and Finance Company Limited

We intend to use certain portion of the proceeds from the Issue to repay a loan from one of our Promoter Group, Ekam Leasing and Finance Company Limited. We intend to use Rs. 250.00 Lakhs of the Net Proceeds to repay a loan to the said promoter group. The purposes of the loan were to refund working capital expenditures. For details, see “Objects to the Issue” on page 99 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

13. Our operations are subject to hazards and other risks and could expose us to material liabilities, loss in revenues and increased expenses.

We conduct various risk studies during the course of bidding for projects, there are always unanticipated or unforeseen risks that may come up due to adverse weather conditions, geological conditions and other reasons. Additionally, our operations are subject to hazards inherent in providing engineering services, such as risk of equipment failure, work accidents, fire or explosion, including hazards that may cause injury and loss of life, severe damage to and destruction of property and equipment, and environmental damage. Actual or claimed defects in equipment procured and/or service quality could give rise to claims, liabilities, costs and expenses, relating to loss of life, personal injury, damage to property, damage to equipment and facilities, pollution, inefficient operating processes, loss of production or suspension of operations. Our policy of covering these risks through contractual limitations of liability, indemnities and insurance may not always be effective. In some of the jurisdictions in which we operate, environmental and workers’ compensation liability may be assigned to us as a matter of law. Clients and sub-contractors may not have adequate financial resources to meet their indemnity obligations to us. Losses may derive from risks not addressed in our indemnity agreements or insurance policies, or it may no longer be possible to obtain adequate insurance against some risks on commercially reasonable terms. Failure to effectively cover ourselves against our industry risks for any of these reasons could expose us to substantial costs and potentially lead to material losses. Additionally, the occurrence of any of these risks may also adversely affect public perception about our operations and the perception of our clients and employees, leading to an adverse effect on our business. These liabilities and costs could have a material adverse effect on our business, results of operations and financial condition.

14. We are dependent upon the expertise of our promoters, key management and technical personnel for the future performance of our Company. We may be adversely affected if the Company for any reason is unable to avail of their expertise.

The industry in which we operate has a limited number of players and accordingly expertise is limited to a few persons only. Our Company relies on experienced professionals who have background in the drilling, exploration and other allied services industry engineering, project management, capital formation and operations of Work over Rigs, Drilling Rigs and associated services. Trained and qualified manpower is most critical as the equipments have to run on a 24 hour basis for the whole year and require to be maintained in excellent condition for running without any interruption. We have a team of professionals who are responsible for the day-to-day operations and drive the business growth. The loss of the services of our senior management or other key personnel could seriously impair our ability to continue to manage and expand our business, which may adversely affect our financial condition. Further, we do not maintain any 'key man' life insurance for our senior members of our management team or other key personnel.

15. We rely on drilling and exploration contracts awarded by private and government sector on tender basis for our revenue.

We rely on drilling and exploration contracts awarded by private and government sector on tender basis for our revenue. In some of the contracts, we may have limited ability to negotiate the terms of contracts as these are on tender basis. Though over a period of time, we have developed credentials which enable us to participate in various tenders of State and Central Governments across different domains of drilling we cannot assure you that we will continue to get these contracts on tender basis.

16. Delays in completion of our current and future projects could have adverse effect on our business prospects and results of operations.

We have faced delays in completion of certain of our projects and are expected to face delays in completion for certain of our projects which are ongoing. The scheduled completion targets for our projects are estimates and are subject to delays as a result of, among other things, unforeseen engineering problems, force majeure events, unanticipated cost increases or changes in scope and inability in obtaining certain government approvals by our clients. Typically, our projects are subject to specific completion schedule requirements. We have also completed few of the projects before the stipulated time in the past and will continue to do so but there can be no assurance that our projects will be completed in the time expected. In the past, we have been subject to non performance Compensation and Deduction from one of our clients which amounts to Rs. 13.85 Lakhs and Rs. 28.75 Lakhs as per restated standalone financials for the year ended March 2017 and 2016 respectively and Rs. 4.18 Lakhs for the half year ended September 30, 2017. We cannot assure you that all potential liabilities that may arise from delays or that the damages, if any, that may be claimed from third parties for such delay, shall be adequate to cover any loss of profits resulting from such delays.

17. We hire Drilling Crews at project sites for specific projects. Once the project is complete, then we no longer continue to keep them as our employee which may result in difficulties in finding drilling crews for newly awarded projects.

As on September 30, 2017, we have 362 employees who are working at sites. We hire them on for specific contracts. Once the project is completed, we no longer continue their services as long as we do not require them for our new projects. In such circumstances, we may face trouble in finding and deploying these employees at site as and when new contracts are awarded to us. As a result, it may affect our business and may delay the execution of operations at site.

- 18. *We derive significant portion of our revenue from few clients and a loss of one or more such significant customers or a reduction in their demand for products could adversely affect our business, financial conditions and results of operations.

We were dependent on a limited number of customers for a significant portion of our income. For the Fiscal 2017 where our top ten customers contributed 98.43% of our total revenue. If we do not achieve our expected margins or suffer losses on one or more of these contracts, this could have a material adverse effect on our results of operations and financial condition. For more details, see “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations” beginning on page 296 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

- 19. *We have not entered into any formal agreement with any organization whether in India or abroad for uninterrupted supply of technical know-how or assistance for our business operations.

Our promoters and employees have gained considerable experience over the years in the business of drilling, exploration and other allied services. We have employed technically qualified and experienced personnel to operate the equipments. We also provide on the job training to our employees at site and train them for site responsibilities to enable us to provide uninterrupted services. However, we have not entered into any formal agreement with any organization whether in India or abroad for uninterrupted supply of technical know-how or assistance for our business operations.

- 20. *We require a number of approvals, NOCs, licences, registrations and permits in the ordinary course of our business. Some of these approvals are required to be transferred in the name of “SOUTH WEST PINNACLE EXPLORATION LIMITED” from “SOUTH WEST PINNACLE EXPLORATION PRIVATE LIMITED” pursuant to conversion and name change of our company and any failure or delay in obtaining such approvals or renewal of the same in a timely manner may adversely affect our operations.

We need to apply for renewal of approvals which expire, from time to time, as and when required in the ordinary course of our business Pursuant to our conversion from a private limited company to a public limited company in the year 2017, we need to take necessary steps for transferring the approvals of our company in the new name.

Our Company has not yet applied for change of name of these approvals. In case of delay or failure to obtain the same, it could affect our business operations. Any failure to renew the approvals that have expired, or to apply for and obtain the required approvals, licences, registrations or permits, or any suspension or revocation of any of the approvals, licences, registrations and permits that have been or may be issued to us, could result in delaying the operations of our business, which may adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects. We cannot assure you that the approvals, licences, registrations and permits issued to us would not be suspended or revoked in the event of non-compliance or alleged non-compliance with any terms or conditions thereof, or pursuant to any regulatory action. For more information, see chapter “Government and Other Statutory Approvals” For further details, please refer the chapter titled “Government and Other Statutory Approvals” on page 324 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

- 21. *We depend on certain brand names and our corporate name and logo that we may not be able to protect and/or maintain.

Our ability to market and sell our products depends upon the recognition of our brand names and associated consumer goodwill. Currently, we have a registered trademark for our corporate name and logo under the Trade Marks Act, 1999. Consequently, we enjoy the statutory protections accorded to registered trademarks in India for the corporate name and logo of our company. In the absence of such registrations, competitors and other companies may challenge the validity or scope of our intellectual property right over these brands or our corporate name or logo. In case of failure to renew our intellectual property on time, it may adversely affect our business operations.

Our failure to comply with existing or increased regulations, or the introduction of changes to existing regulations, could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

The material approvals, licences or permits required for our business include tax related approvals and vehicle registrations, among others. See “Government and other Statutory Approvals” on page 324 of Draft Red Herring Prospectus for further details on the required material approvals for the operation of our business.

22. Our inability to manage growth may lead to loss of opportunities and may hamper our future growth plans

We anticipate rapid growth and expansion in our business, our capacity and our scope of operations. We may be subject to growth-related risks including capacity constraints and pressure on internal systems and controls. Our Company’s ability to manage growth effectively will require us to continue to implement and improve our operational and financial systems and to expand, train and manage our employee base. The inability of our Company to deal with this growth could have a material adverse impact on our business, operations and prospects. In order to manage our current operations and any future growth effectively, we will need to continue to implement and improve our operational, financial and management information systems and to hire, train, motivate, manage and retain our employees. There can be no assurance that our Company will be able to manage such growth effectively, that our management, personnel or systems will be adequate to support our operations or that we will be able to achieve the increased levels of revenue commensurate with the increased levels of operating expenses associated with this growth.

23. Our projects have significant capital expenditure requirements and involve many uncertainties and operating risks. Accordingly, they may not be completed in a timely manner or at all, or may not operate as planned and therefore, we may not be able to realize profits from these projects and they may cause substantial losses.

Our Operations are Capital Intensive therefore our business demands substantial funds towards working capital requirements. We intend to make substantial additional investments in new projects for our expansion plans, which will require significant capital expenditure. We will also need to incur capital expenditure relating to our overseas exploration and development activities. Such projects entail exploration, engineering, technological upgrades, construction and other commercial risks, and the projects currently contemplated by us may involve significant cost overruns, may not be completed in a timely manner or at all, or may not operate as planned.

Our projects may be delayed or may not be entirely successful for many reasons, including financial constraints, cost overruns, mechanical and technical difficulties, the failure to obtain necessary governmental approvals by our clients, and industrial action. These projects may also sometimes require the use of additional new and advanced technologies, which can be expensive to purchase and implement, and may not function as expected.

24. We may incur material costs to comply with, or suffer material liabilities as a result of health, safety and environmental laws and regulations.

Our Clients are required to obtain various licenses which are necessary to start drilling and exploration operations. Further, our operations require precautionary measures while carrying out drilling and exploration operations. Though we have adopted various Health Safety and Environment Policies and Safe Operating Procedures to be followed by our employees or the contractor’s employee at site, we could incur significant costs, including costs, fines for any uncertain events.

25. We have in the past entered into related party transactions and may continue to do so in the future.

Our Company has entered into certain transactions with our related parties including our Promoters, the Promoter Group, our Directors and their relatives. We have also loans taken from promoter and members of promoter group. While we believe that all such transactions have been conducted on the arm's length basis, there can be no assurance that we could not have achieved more favourable terms had such transactions not been entered into with related parties. Furthermore, it is likely that we will enter into related party transactions in the future. There can be no assurance that such transactions, individually or in the aggregate, will not have an adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operation. For details on the transactions entered by us, please refer to section "Related Party Transactions" in Chapter "Financial Statements" beginning on page 197 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

26. Our Company has unsecured loans which are repayable on demand. Any demand loan from lenders for repayment of such unsecured loans, may adversely affect our cash flows.

As on September 30, 2017, our Company has unsecured loans amounting to Rs. 2189.04 lakhs from Directors, Shareholder and Body Corporates that are repayable on demand to the relevant lenders. Out of these, Rs. 4500.00 Lakhs shall be repaid out of Issue Proceeds which belongs to Body Corporates. Further, some of these loans are not repayable in accordance with any agreed repayment schedule and may be recalled by the relevant lender at any time. Any such unexpected demand or accelerated repayment may have a material adverse effect on the business, cash flows and financial condition of the borrower against which repayment is sought. Any demand from lenders for repayment of such unsecured loans, may adversely affect our cash flows. For further details of unsecured loans of our Company, please refer the chapter titled "Financial Statements as Restated" beginning on page 197 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

27. Our Promoters and our Group Companies have provided personal/corporate guarantees to certain loan facilities availed by us, which if revoked may require alternative guarantees, repayment of amounts due or termination of the facilities.

Our Promoters and our Group Companies have provided personal guarantees in relation to certain loan facilities availed of by us. In the event that any of these guarantees are revoked, the lenders for such facilities may require alternate guarantees, repayment of amounts outstanding under such facilities, or may even terminate such facilities. We may not be successful in procuring alternative guarantees satisfactory to the lenders, and as a result may need to repay outstanding amounts under such facilities or seek additional sources of capital, which may not be available on acceptable terms or at all and any such failure to raise additional capital could affect our operations and our financial condition.

28. We may not be fully insured for all losses we may incur.

Although we attempt to limit and mitigate our liability for damages arising from negligent acts, errors or omissions through contractual provisions, limitations of liability set forth in our contracts may not be enforceable in all instances or may not otherwise protect us from liability for damages. In addition, certain liabilities, such as claims of third parties for which we may be required to indemnify our clients, are generally not limited under those agreements. Although we believe we have adequate insurance coverage but that coverage may not continue to be available on reasonable terms or to be available in sufficient amounts to cover one or more large claims, and our insurers may disclaim coverage as to any future claim. Insurance coverage may be an inadequate remedy where the loss suffered is not easily quantifiable, for example, in the event of severe damage to our reputation. The successful assertion of one or more large claims against us that exceed available insurance coverage, or changes in our insurance policies (including premium increases or the imposition of large deductible or co-insurance requirements), could have a material adverse effect on our business, reputation, results of operations, financial condition and cash flows.

29. Within the parameters as mentioned in the chapter titled "Objects of this Issue" beginning on page 99 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus, our Company's management will have flexibility in applying the proceeds of this Issue. The fund requirement and deployment mentioned in the Objects of this Issue have not been appraised by any bank or financial institution.

We intend to use 1425.00 Lakhs of Net Proceeds towards working capital. The funds raised from the Issue may remain idle on account of change in assumptions, market conditions, strategy of our Company, etc. For further details on the use of the Issue Proceeds, please refer chapter titled “Objects of the Issue” beginning on page 99 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus. The deployment of funds for the purposes described above is at the discretion of our Company’s Board of Directors. The fund requirement and deployment is based on internal management estimates and has not been appraised by any bank or financial institution. Accordingly, within the parameters as mentioned in the chapter titled “Objects of the Issue” beginning on page 99 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus, the Management will have significant flexibility in applying the proceeds received by our Company from the Issue. Our Board of Directors will monitor the proceeds of this Issue.

30. Our Company has not complied with certain statutory provisions under various acts. Such non-compliances/lapses may attract penalties.

Our Company has not complied with certain statutory provisions such as the following:

- Non – filing of Annual Performance Report with RBI.

Further, Our Company is required to make filings under various rules and regulations as applicable under the Companies Act, 2013 and under the applicable provisions of the Companies Act, 1956 which is usually done within the prescribed time period by the Company, however at some instances which includes but not limited to increase in authorized capital, allotment form, regularization of Directors etc. Due to these delays in filings, our Company had on such occasions paid the requisite late fees.

No show cause notice in respect of the above has been received by the Company till date, any penalty imposed for such non-compliance in future by any regulatory authority could affect our financial conditions to that extent. Such delay/noncompliance may in the future render us liable to statutory penalties and disallowing the resolutions, which may have consequence of violation of statutory provisions concerned.

- Issue related risk

31. We have issued Equity Shares in the last twelve months, the price of which may be lower than the Issue Price.

Our Company has issued allotted 46,50,000 in the last twelve months which may be lower than the Issue Price. For further details of Equity Shares issued, please refer to chapter titled, ‘Capital Structure’ beginning on page 83 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

32. The Issue Price of our Equity Shares may not be indicative of the market price of our Equity Shares after the Issue and the market price of our Equity Shares may decline below the Issue Price and you may not be able to sell your Equity Shares at or above the Issue Price.

The Issue Price of our Equity Shares will be determined by book building method. This price is based on numerous factors (For further information, please refer chapter titled “Basis for Issue Price” beginning on page 111 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus) and may not be indicative of the market price of our Equity Shares after the Issue. The market price of our Equity Shares could be subject to significant fluctuations after the Issue, and may decline below the Issue Price. We cannot assure you that you will be able to sell your Equity Shares at or above the Issue Price. Among the factors that could affect our share price include without limitation. The following:

- Half yearly variations in the rate of growth of our financial indicators, such as earnings per share, net income and revenues;

- Changes in revenue or earnings estimates or publication of research reports by analysts;
- Speculation in the press or investment community;
- General market conditions; and
- Domestic and international economic, legal and regulatory factors unrelated to our performance.

33. Sale of Equity Shares by our Promoters or other significant shareholder(s) may adversely affect the trading price of the Equity Shares.

Any instance of disinvestments of equity shares by our Promoters or by other significant shareholder(s) may significantly affect the trading price of our Equity Shares. Further, our market price may also be adversely affected even if there is a perception or belief that such sales of Equity Shares might occur.

EXTERNAL RISK FACTORS

- Industry Risks

34. Changes in government regulations or their implementation could disrupt our operations and adversely affect our business and results of operations.

Our business and industry is regulated by different laws, rules and regulations framed by the Central and State Government. These regulations can be amended/ changed on a short notice at the discretion of the Government. If we fail to comply with all applicable regulations or if the regulations governing our business or their implementation change adversely, we may incur increased costs or be subject to penalties, which could disrupt our operations and adversely affect our business and results of operations.

- Other Risks

35. The Companies Act, 2013 has effected significant changes to the existing Indian company law framework, which may subject us to higher compliance requirements and increase our compliance costs.

A majority of the provisions and rules under the Companies Act, 2013 have recently been notified and have come into effect from the date of their respective notification, resulting in the corresponding provisions of the Companies Act, 1956 ceasing to have effect. The Companies Act, 2013 has brought into effect significant changes to the Indian company law framework, such as in the provisions related to issue of capital, disclosures in prospectus, corporate governance norms, audit matters, related party transactions, introduction of a provision allowing the initiation of class action suits in India against companies by shareholders or depositors, a restriction on investment by an Indian company through more than two layers of subsidiary investment companies (subject to certain permitted exceptions), prohibitions on loans to directors and insider trading and restrictions on directors and key managerial personnel from engaging in forward dealing. To ensure compliance with the requirements of the Companies Act, 2013, we may need to allocate additional resources, which may increase our regulatory compliance costs and divert management attention.

The Companies Act, 2013 introduced certain additional requirements which do not have corresponding equivalents under the Companies Act, 1956. Accordingly, we may face challenges in interpreting and complying with such provisions due to limited jurisprudence on them. In the event, our interpretation of such provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 differs from, or contradicts with, any judicial pronouncements or clarifications issued by the Government in the future, we may face regulatory actions or we may be required to undertake remedial steps. We may face difficulties in complying with any such overlapping requirements. Further, we cannot currently determine the impact of provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 which are yet to come in force. Any increase in our compliance requirements or in our compliance costs may have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

36. You may be subject to Indian taxes arising out of capital gains on the sale of the Equity Shares.

Under current Indian tax laws and regulations, capital gains arising from the sale of equity shares in an Indian company are generally taxable in India. Any gain realized on the sale of shares on a stock exchange held for more than 12 months will not be subject to capital gains tax in India if the securities transaction tax (“STT”) has been paid on the transaction. The STT will be levied on and collected by an Indian stock exchange on which equity shares are sold. Further, any gain realized on the sale of listed equity shares held for a period of 12 months or less will be subject to short term capital gains tax in India, if securities transaction tax has been paid on the transaction. Any gain realized on the sale of shares held for more than 36 months to an Indian resident, which are sold other than on a recognized stock exchange and as a result of which no STT has been paid, will be subject to long term capital gains tax in India. Further, any gain realized on the sale of equity shares held for a period of 36 months or less which are sold other than on a recognized stock exchange and on which no STT has been paid, may be subject to short term capital gains tax at a relatively higher rate as compared to the transaction where STT has been paid in India.

37. Significant differences exist between Indian GAAP and other accounting principles, such as U.S. GAAP and IFRS, which may be material to the financial statements prepared and presented in accordance with SEBI ICDR Regulations contained in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

As stated in the reports of the Auditor included in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus under chapter “Financial Statements as restated” beginning on page 197, the financial statements included in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus are based on financial information that is based on the audited financial statements that are prepared and presented in conformity with Indian GAAP and restated in accordance with the SEBI ICDR Regulations, and no attempt has been made to reconcile any of the information given in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus to any other principles or to base it on any other standards. Indian GAAP differs from accounting principles and auditing standards with which prospective investors may be familiar in other countries, such as U.S. GAAP and IFRS. Significant differences exist between Indian GAAP and U.S. GAAP and IFRS, which may be material to the financial information prepared and presented in accordance with Indian GAAP contained in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus. Accordingly, the degree to which the financial information included in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus will provide meaningful information is dependent on familiarity with Indian GAAP, the Companies Act and the SEBI ICDR Regulations. Any reliance by persons not familiar with Indian GAAP on the financial disclosures presented in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus should accordingly be limited.

38. Political instability or a change in economic liberalization and deregulation policies could seriously harm business and economic conditions in India generally and our business in particular.

The Government of India has traditionally exercised and continues to exercise influence over many aspects of the economy. Our business and the market price and liquidity of our Equity Shares may be affected by interest rates, changes in Government policy, taxation, social and civil unrest and other political, economic or other developments in or affecting India. The rate of economic liberalization could change, and specific laws and policies affecting the information technology sector, foreign investment and other matters affecting investment in our securities could change as well. Any significant change in such liberalization and deregulation policies could adversely affect business and economic conditions in India, generally, and our business, prospects, financial condition and results of operations, in particular.

39. We cannot guarantee the accuracy or completeness of facts and other statistics with respect to India, the Indian economy and our industry contained in the Draft Red Herring Prospectus.

While facts and other statistics in this Draft Red Herring Prospectus relating to India, the Indian economy and our industry has been based on various government publications and reports from government agencies that we believe are reliable, we cannot guarantee the quality or reliability of such materials. While we have taken reasonable care in the reproduction of such information, industry facts and other statistics have not been prepared or independently verified by us or any of our respective affiliates or advisors and, therefore we make no representation as to their accuracy or completeness. These facts and other statistics include the facts and statistics included in the chapter titled 'Our Industry' beginning on page 118 of this Draft Red Herring Prospectus. Due to possibly flawed or ineffective data collection methods or discrepancies between published information and market practice and other problems, the statistics herein may be inaccurate or may not be comparable to statistics produced elsewhere and should not be unduly relied upon. Further, there is no assurance that they are stated or compiled on the same basis or with the same degree of accuracy, as the case may be, elsewhere.

40. Global economic, political and social conditions may harm our ability to do business, increase our costs and negatively affect our stock price.

Global economic and political factors that are beyond our control, influence forecasts and directly affect performance. These factors include interest rates, rates of economic growth, fiscal and monetary policies of governments, inflation, deflation, foreign exchange fluctuations, consumer credit availability, fluctuations in commodities markets, consumer debt levels, unemployment trends and other matters that influence consumer confidence, spending and tourism. Increasing volatility in financial markets may cause these factors to change with a greater degree of frequency and magnitude, which may negatively affect our stock prices.

41. Foreign investors are subject to foreign investment restrictions under Indian law that limits our ability to attract foreign investors, which may adversely impact the market price of the Equity Shares.

Under the foreign exchange regulations currently in force in India, transfers of shares between non-residents and residents are freely permitted (subject to certain exceptions) if they comply with the pricing guidelines and reporting requirements specified by the RBI. If the transfer of shares, which are sought to be transferred, is not in compliance with such pricing guidelines or reporting requirements or fall under any of the exceptions referred to above, then the prior approval of the RBI will be required. Additionally, shareholders who seek to convert the Rupee proceeds from a sale of shares in India into foreign currency and repatriate that foreign currency from India will require a no objection/ tax clearance certificate from the income tax authority. There can be no assurance that any approval required from the RBI or any other government agency can be obtained on any particular terms or at all.

42. The extent and reliability of Indian infrastructure could adversely affect our Company's results of operations and financial condition.

India's physical infrastructure is in developing phase compared to that of many developed nations. Any congestion or disruption in its port, rail and road networks, electricity grid, communication systems or any other public facility could disrupt our Company's normal business activity. Any deterioration of India's physical infrastructure would harm the national economy; disrupt the transportation of goods and supplies, and costs to doing business in India. These problems could interrupt our Company's business operations, which could have an adverse effect on its results of operations and financial condition.

43. Any downgrading of India's sovereign rating by an independent agency may harm our ability to raise financing.

Any adverse revisions to India's credit ratings for domestic and international debt by international rating agencies may adversely impact our ability to raise additional financing, and the interest rates and other commercial terms at which such additional financing may be available. This could have an adverse effect on our business and future financial performance, our ability to obtain financing for capital expenditures and the trading price of our Equity Shares.

44. Natural calamities could have a negative impact on the Indian economy and cause our Company's business to suffer.

India has experienced natural calamities such as earthquakes, tsunami, floods etc. In recent years, the extent and severity of these natural disasters determine their impact on the Indian economy. Prolonged spells of abnormal rainfall or other natural calamities could have a negative impact on the Indian economy, which could adversely affect our business, prospects, financial condition and results of operations as well as the price of the Equity Shares.

45. Terrorist attacks, civil unrests and other acts of violence or war involving India or other countries could adversely affect the financial markets, our business, financial condition and the price of our Equity Shares.

Any major hostilities involving India or other acts of violence, including civil unrest or similar events that are beyond our control, could have a material adverse effect on India's economy and our business. Incidents such as the terrorist attacks, other incidents such as those in US, Indonesia, Madrid and London, and other acts of violence may adversely affect the Indian stock markets where our Equity Shares will trade as well the global equity markets generally. Such acts could negatively impact business sentiment as well as trade between countries, which could adversely affect our Company's business and profitability. Additionally, such events could have a material adverse effect on the market for securities of Indian companies, including the Equity Shares.

INDIAN MINING INDUSTRY

India holds a fair advantage in cost of production and conversion costs in steel and alumina. Its strategic location enables convenient exports to develop as well as the fast-developing Asian markets. India currently produces around 95 minerals which mainly include 10 metallic, 23 non-metallic, 3 atomic, 4 fuel and 55 minor minerals. Rise in infrastructure development and automotive production are driving growth in the sector. Power and cement industries are also aiding growth in the metals and mining sector. Demand for iron and steel is set to continue, given the strong growth expectations for the residential and commercial building industry.

EVOLUTION OF THE INDIAN METALS AND MINING SECTOR

- 1947 Mining sector received a boost post independence under the impact of successive Five Year Plans
- 1956 Central Government promulgated Industrial Policy Resolution. The exploration of minerals was intensified and the Geological Survey of India was strengthened. Indian Bureau of Mines was established to look after the scientific development of mineral resources.
- 1972 Mineral Exploration Corporation established to conduct exploration with focus on coal, iron ore, limestone, and dolomite and manganese ore. Indian mining sector was opened up to Foreign Direct Investment in 1993 after the announcement of the New Mineral Policy.
- 2012 In the year 2012, crude steel production in the country was 53.357 MT while the major producers of crude steel were Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Limited, Steel Authority of India Limited, Tata Steel, Essar, JSW Steel, JSW Ispat Steel and Jindal Steel & Power
- 2014 India is the largest producer of sheet mica, the fourth largest producer of iron ore and has the seventh largest reserve of bauxite in the world in 2015 Cumulative FDI inflows into mining sector, during April 2000 to March 2016, stood at around USD2,216.09 million.
- 2015 Total finished steel production (alloy and non alloy) in India reached 91.46 million tonnes and stood as the third largest crude steel producer in the world in 2015. In the year FY16 total finished steel imports, were 11.21 million tonnes while the exports for the same year was 3.80 million tonnes

GLOBAL ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

For India, three external developments are of significant consequence. In the short run, the change in the outlook for global interest rates as a result of the US elections and the implied change in expectations of US fiscal and monetary policy will impact on India's capital flows and exchange rates. Markets are factoring in a regime change in advanced countries, especially US macroeconomic policy, with high expectations of fiscal stimulus and unwavering exit from unconventional monetary policies. The end of the 20-year bond rally and end to the corset of deflation and deflationary expectations are within sight. Second, the medium-term political outlook for globalisation and in particular for the world's "political carrying capacity for globalisation" may have changed in the wake of recent developments. In the short run a strong dollar and declining competitiveness might exacerbate the lure of protectionist policies. These follow on on-going trends—documented widely—about stagnant or declining trade at the global level. This changed outlook will affect India's export and growth prospects

Third, developments in the US, especially the rise of the dollar, will have implications for China's currency and currency policy. If China is able to successfully re-balance its economy, the spill over effects on India and the rest of the world will be positive. On, the other hand, further declines in the yuan, even if dollar-induced, could interact with underlying vulnerabilities to create disruptions in China that could have negative spill overs for India. For China, there are at least two difficult balancing acts with respect to the currency. Domestically, a declining currency (and credit expansion) props up the economy in the short run but delay rebalancing while also adding to the medium term challenges. Internationally, allowing the currency to weaken in response to capital flight risks creating trade frictions but imposing capital controls discourages FDI and undermines China's ambitions to establish the Yuan as a reserve currency. China with its underlying vulnerabilities remains the country to watch for its potential to unsettle the global economy.

REVIEW OF MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS IN INDIAN ECONOMY

The Indian economy has continued to consolidate the gains achieved in restoring macroeconomic stability. Real GDP growth in the first half of the year was 7.2 percent, on the weaker side of the 7.0-7.75 per cent projection in the Economic Survey 2015-16 and somewhat lower than the 7.6 percent rate recorded in the second half of 2015-16 (Figure 1a). The main problem was fixed investment, which declined sharply as stressed balance sheets in the corporate sector continued to take a toll on firms' spending plans. On the positive side, the economy was buoyed by government consumption, as the 7th Pay Commission salary recommendations were implemented, and by the long-awaited start of an export recovery as demand in advanced countries began to accelerate. Nominal GDP growth recovered to respectable levels, reversing the sharp and worrisome dip that had occurred in the first half of 2015-16 (Figure 1b).

The major highlights of the sectoral growth outcome of the first half of 2016-17 were: (i) moderation in industrial and nongovernment service sectors; (ii) the modest pick-up in agricultural growth on the back of improved monsoon; and (iii) strong growth in public administration and defence services—dampeners on and catalysts to growth almost balancing each other and producing a real Gross Value Addition (GVA) growth (7.2 percent), quite similar to the one (7.1 per cent) in H2 2015-16 (Figure 1b).

Inflation this year has been characterized by two distinctive features. The Consumer Price Index (CPI)-New Series inflation, which averaged 4.9 per cent during April-December 2016, has displayed a downward trend since July when it became apparent that kharif agricultural production in general, and pulses in particular would be bountiful. The decline in pulses prices has contributed substantially to the decline in CPI inflation which reached 3.4 percent at end-December. The second distinctive feature has been the reversal of WPI inflation, from a trough of (-) 5.1 percent in August 2015 to 3.4 percent at end-December 2016, on the back of rising international oil prices. The wedge between CPI and WPI inflation, which had serious implications for the measurement of GDP discussed in MYEA (Box 3, Chapter 1, MYEA 2015-16), has narrowed considerably. Core inflation has, however, been more stable, hovering around 4.5 percent to 5 percent for the year so far. The outlook for the year as a whole is for CPI inflation to be below the RBI's target of 5 percent, a trend likely to be assisted by demonetisation.

External Sector

Similarly, the external position appears robust having successfully weathered the sizeable redemption of Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR) deposits in late 2016, and the volatility associated with the US election and demonetisation. The current account deficit has declined to reach about 0.3 percent of GDP in the first half of FY2017. Foreign exchange reserves are at comfortable levels, having risen from around US$350 billion at end-January 2016 to US$ 360 billion at end-December 2016 and are well above standard norms for reserve adequacy. In part, surging net FDI inflows, which grew from 1.7 percent of GDP in FY2016 to 3.2 percent of GDP in the second quarter of FY2017, helped the balance-of-payments

The trade deficit declined by 23.5 per cent in April-December 2016 over corresponding period of previous year. During the first half of the fiscal year, the main factor was the contraction in imports, which was far steeper than the fall in exports. But during October- December, both exports and imports started a long-awaited recovery, growing at an average rate of more than 5 per cent. The improvement in exports appears to be linked to improvements in the world economy, led by better growth in the US and Germany. On the import side, the advantage on account of benign international oil prices has receded and is likely to exercise upward pressure on the import bill in the short to medium term. Meanwhile, the net services surplus declined in the first half, as software service exports slowed and financial service exports declined. Net private remittances declined by $4.5 bn in the first half of 2016-17 compared to the same period of 2015-16, weighed down by the lagged effects of the oil price decline, which affected inflows from the Gulf region.

Fiscal Position

Trends in the fiscal sector in the first half have been unexceptional and the central government is committed to achieving its fiscal deficit target of 3.5 percent of GDP this year. Excise duties and services taxes have benefitted from the additional revenue measures introduced last year. The most notable feature has been the over-performance (even relative to budget estimates) of excise duties in turn based on buoyant petroleum consumption: real consumption of petroleum products (petrol) increased by 11.2 percent during April-December 2016 compared to same period in the previous year. Indirect taxes, especially petroleum excises, have held up even after demonetisation in part due to the exemption of petroleum products from its scope. More broadly, tax collections have held up to a greater extent than expected possibly because of payment of dues in demonetised notes was permitted. Non-tax revenues have been challenged owing to shortfall in spectrum and disinvestment receipts but also to forecast optimism; the stress in public sector enterprises has also reduced dividend payments.

State government finances are under stress. The consolidated deficit of the states has increased steadily in recent years, rising from 2.5 percent of GDP in 2014-15 to 3.6 percent of GDP in 2015-16, in part because of the UDAY scheme. The budgeted numbers suggest there will be an improvement this year. However, markets are anticipating some slippage, on account of the expected growth slowdown, reduced revenues from stamp duties, and implementation of their own Pay Commissions. For these reasons, the spread on state bonds over government securities jumped to 75 basis points in the January 2017 auction from 45 basis points in October 2016. For the general government as a whole, there is an improvement in the fiscal deficit with and without UDAY scheme.

SERVICE SECTOR IN INDIA

Introduction

The services sector is not only the dominant sector in India's GDP, but has also attracted significant foreign investment flows, contributed significantly to exports as well as provided large-scale employment. India's services sector covers a wide variety of activities such as trade, hotel and restaurants, transport, storage and communication, financing, insurance, real estate, business services, community, social and personal services, and services associated with construction.

Market Size

The services sector is the key driver of India's economic growth. The sector contributed around 53.8 per cent of its Gross Value Added in 2016-17 and employed 28.6 per cent of the total population. Net services exports from India reached US$ 67.5 billion in 2016-17 while the sector attracted 60.7 per cent of India's total FDI inflows. India's score in the Nikkei/IHS Market Services Purchasing Managers Index reached an eight month high of 53.1 in June, 2017, supported by the rise in new business orders, and heavy growth in the private sector output.

The Central Statistics Office's (CSO) provisional estimates of Gross Value Added (GVA) in FY 2016-17 (PE) indicate that the service sector grew 7.74 per cent year-on-year to Rs 21.43 trillion (US$ 332.74 billion). According to a report called 'The India Opportunity' by leading research firm Market Research Store, the Indian mobile services market is expected to reach $37 billion in 2017 and grow by 10.3 per cent year-on-year to reach US$ 103.9 billion by 2020. Out of overall services sector, the sub-sector comprising financial services, real estate and professional services contributed US$ 305.8 billion or 20.5 per cent to the GDP. The sub-sector of community, social and personal services contributed US$ 188.2 billion or 12.6 per cent to the GDP.

Investments

The Indian services sector which includes financial, banking, insurance, non-financial/business, outsourcing, research and development, courier and technical test analysis, has attracted FDI equity inflows in the period April 2000-June 2017, amounting to about US$ 61.36 billion which is about 17.92 per cent of the total foreign inflows, according to the Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP).

Some of the developments and major investments by companies in the services sector in the recent past are as follows:

- Urban Clap, an Indian home services start-up, has raised US$ 21 million in a series C funding round led by Vy Capital, an internet investment fund. The company will use the funds for expansion to more cities, investment in technology and addition of vendors.
- Piramal Finance Ltd, an arm of Piramal Enterprises Ltd, invested Rs 485 crores (US$ 74.92 million) in the subsidiary of Apollo International Ltd, called Apollo LogiSolutions (ALS), a logistics solutions provider.
- MPaani Solutions Pvt. Ltd, a consumer and retailer data analytics start-up, has raised US$ 1.35 million in a pre-series A funding round led by IDG Ventures with the aim of deploying capital for scaling technology and data science functions along with spending on marketing and sales.
- FM Logistic Asia, outlined plans of investing around EUR 50 million (US$ 56.14 million) in India in the next four years, to contribute to a better efficiency of logistics market in the country.
- CDPQ, Canada's second largest pension fund, plans to invest around US$ 155 million to acquire a minority stake in TVS Logistics Services Limited, a privately held subsidiary of the TVS Group.
- WNS Global Services has made an announcement to acquire Denali Sourcing Services for US$ 40 million, with the aim of improving its sourcing and procurement capabilities.

- Uber Technologies Inc plans to launch UberEATS, its food delivery service to India, with investments made across multiple cities and regions, as per Mr Allen Penn, Head, Asia-Pacific, UberEATS.
- International Finance Corporation (IFC), the investment arm of World Bank, plans to invest around US$ 10 million Bengaluru-based online freight-booking service provider Zinka Logistics, which will be used to expand Zinka's service offerings and further technology development.
- Reliance Jio Infocomm Ltd. and Uber have announced a strategic partnership, which will enable Uber riders to pay for their rides using JioMoney.
- The domestic and foreign logistic companies are optimistic about prospects in the logistics sector in India, and are actively making investments plans to improve earnings and streamline operations.

Road Ahead

Services sector growth is governed by both domestic and global factors. The Indian facilities management market is expected to grow at 17 per cent CAGR between 2015 and 2020 and surpass the US$19 billion mark supported by booming real estate, retail, and hospitality sectors. The performance of trade, hotels and restaurants, and transport, storage and communication sectors are expected to improve in FY17. The financing, insurance, real estate, and business services sectors are also expected to continue their good run in FY17.

The implementation of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) would create a common national market and reduce the overall tax burden on goods. It is expected to reduce costs in the long run on account of availability of GST input credit, which will result in the reduction in prices of services.

GLOBAL MINING INDUSTRY

INTRODUCTION

Oil, gas, and mineral resource wealth is widespread among developing states, where it frequently accounts for a large share of gross domestic product, export earnings, government revenues, and jobs.¹ Its potential for economic and social transformation is evident for any country capable of harnessing it.² Done effectively, in a single generation converting these non renewable natural resources into capital can allow a country to transition from poverty to at least middle-income status and enable its citizens to enjoy a better quality of life. For low-income countries dependent on aid, a policy shift toward the extractive industries (EIs) offers the prospect of an economy more diverse than one defined by subsistence agriculture. It can help lead the way toward a balanced budget, a reduction in foreign debt, savings, and an opportunity to develop new industries.

For countries emerging from serious conflict or severe economic misfortune, such a shift offers the prospect of a fresh start. It is not surprising that the number of countries seeking to use oil, gas, and mining resources to undergird social transformation is increasing significantly.³ No fewer than 81 countries now have economies driven by these resources,⁴ and almost 80 percent of them have per capita income below the global average—the incentive for their efforts. Yet EI is a sector that has aroused far more controversy than most and that raises many cautionary flags to newcomers. Contrary to expectations, a significant feature of natural resource development is that over half of the economies it has driven are not catching up (McKinsey Global Institute 2013, 6). Since 1995 they have failed to match the global un weighted average per capita growth rate. Even among those economies that have experienced long-term, above average economic growth, it can be argued that they have not always enhanced prosperity in the wider sense: growth in productivity, resilience, and connectivity, for example. For many years EIs' relationship to sustainability has been questioned. In a fair number of cases these industries have brought a surge of activity and investment that has triggered high expectations, only to disappoint, as the benefits are retained by a few and the costs are borne by many. They have been called a “resource curse.”

Development of the country in which the operations take place may not necessarily follow large-scale investment, at least not in the sense that investment generates long-term development impacts. In some cases, the country may even become worse off, depending on the human development indicators used, particularly environment-related indicators. This has led some to conclude that the discovery and development of oil, gas, and minerals is not a blessing at all or even a source of opportunities to accelerate economic and social development. This debate has been thrown into sharp relief by the sudden end of the long commodities boom that benefited resource-rich countries during the early 2000s, when oil and metal prices reached historic highs. The reversal in commodity prices has underlined the vulnerability of this industry to volatility, unpredictability, and periodic shocks. Preparation for downward swings as well as upward swings is an essential task for any existing or aspiring resource-rich state. If a single lesson has been learned from this debate, it is the need for governance structures that can ensure that short-term benefits are not obtained at the expense of long term sustainability.

Yet many citizens will find that the challenges of natural resource management are ones for which their governments are not well prepared. Moving forward is more than a matter of installing or building “capacity.” It requires governments to understand how what is commonly described as “good practice” is continually modified and improved by research and comparative analysis, to test fresh approaches in a country’s unique context, and at the same time to persuade vested interests of the need for change. In practical terms, governments in resource-rich countries and countries that appear to have good resource potential will often inherit legal and institutional frameworks for EI activity that need to be reformed. In some countries, there may be only a patchwork of contracts in place, hardly meriting the consistency and cohesion implied by the commonly used notion of a framework. Policies that envisage long-term, resource-led development will often have to be designed from scratch. In tackling these policy challenges, governments of resource-rich developing countries will quickly become aware of the current wide range of opinions and perspectives on resource-led development; bolstered by an impressive number of case studies and volumes of empirical data,⁶ some will caution them that negative economic, environmental, and social effects can outweigh the potential benefits of natural resource development.

However, recent search has shown that there is nothing inevitable about either negative or positive links.⁷ A growing body of opinion, discussed in this and in the following chapters, argues that discoveries of oil, gas, or minerals can contribute positively to a country’s overall agenda for social and economic development if the challenges of resource management can be met successfully within the constraints imposed by environmental considerations. Many of those challenges are now thought to lie within the institutional or governance frameworks of the countries themselves. Governments and citizens in countries seeking to promote resource-led development must ask themselves, What should our priorities be and what choices are open to us? The first question they should address is whether oil, gas, or other mineral exploitation is a good course of action or not. This is especially true in areas of high conservation value. There will be some situations where environmental (or social and cultural) factors are so significant, or occasions when the negative impacts cannot be reliably predicted, that oil, gas, and mining must be considered an incompatible option and a cautious approach should be adopted.

COMMON FEATURES OF THE EXTRACTIVE INDUSTRIES

Long, risky, and costly exploration and development

Each of the EI sectors is characterized by long, risky, costly, and very capital-intensive development.² For oil and gas, there is additionally a high cost at the exploration stage, with dry wells and resulting losses being common. A state that wishes to go it alone in the EI sector needs significant financial resources and an economy with sufficient diversity to allay concerns about EI sector investment risk (Boadway and Keen 2010). States that, more typically, choose to attract and rely on international investment, need to have in place a legal, contractual, and fiscal regime that investors can understand and trust. These states must also have a political track record that provides investors with reasonable assurances against adverse changes when a major discovery is made and/or exploitation is under way. Conditions and assumptions that exist at the beginning of a project—at the time when laws are drafted and contracts awarded—are almost certain to change over the course of the project investment. Initial decisions are usually made when there is great uncertainty about the sector's potential, based on what is known about the geology at the time of exploration. There is also uncertainty about the future economics, markets, risks, and politics that will affect the project. The incentive for a state to revisit the terms of the initial bargain struck is increased by the shift in bargaining power that occurs in the event of a commercial discovery and a substantial investment by the foreign investor.

Sophisticated management and specialized technology

A second common feature is the dependence of the EI sectors on sophisticated management and specialized technology.³ This dependence affects the development of host-state institutional capacity. States developing their EI sector must have sufficient institutional capacity to adequately oversee sector operations and for adopting the competitive licensing, contractual, and fiscal regimes required to attract needed skills and technology. The challenge here lies in finding ways of enabling a transfer of expertise and sourcing of business to local firms in order to ensure a long-term benefit to the domestic economy.

Asymmetric access to information

Partly due to the complex management skills and technology that characterize the EI sectors, governments are at an informational disadvantage vis-à-vis international investors and operators (Stiglitz 1989; Nutavoot 2004). The government is likely to be informed about its future fiscal intentions, but the private investor undertaking exploration and development will probably be better informed about technical and commercial aspects of a project. This has important implications for the design of license or contract award procedures, fiscal design, and fiscal administration as well as the engagement of outside technical assistance. It can also be the root of subsequent dissatisfaction by a government about the terms negotiated with investors by its predecessor(s) and trigger demands for a review of those terms. With increasing sources of competition in the EI sector, and the role of national resource companies, this is less of a problem than it once was. Access to information remains a challenge, however, for many governments in resource-rich economies and is compounded by a tendency of some of them to be overly secretive about such information once it has been obtained.

Price volatility

A fourth feature common to both the petroleum and mining sectors is the volatility of prices, costs, and rents. The extreme volatility of prices not only poses macroeconomic management challenges but also raises issues about the design of fiscal terms. A fundamental policy issue with which governments must constantly grapple is the question of how the burden of the risk of price and revenue volatility should be divided between the investor and the government. Volatile commodity prices can also have dramatic impacts on a country's exchange rate, with the effect of driving up the value of the currency if commodity prices are rising and pushing it lower when they fall. This will be worsened by capital inflows and outflows. The volatility or variability of costs receives much less attention, but deserves more. EI costs vary widely across time and across projects, creating significant issues for both the design of fiscal regimes and their administration. When costs soar for investors, as can happen in both the mining and hydrocarbon sectors, tensions with governments are likely to result from the necessary remedial actions. Rents (discussed in the following subsection) are also volatile as a result of dramatic fluctuations in price. The challenge lies less in the wide variability of prices than in the difficulty in predicting them. Most forecasts about pricing turn out to be wrong (IMF 2012, 10). The consequences can be severe. Besides the impacts of variation on the size of resource rents (which creates difficulties for planning), long term price trends can make it economically unfeasible for investors to extract reserves, even if technology has improved. This can leave assets stranded.

Substantial rents

Both the petroleum and mining sectors are capable of generating very substantial economic rents. By rent is meant the revenues in excess of all costs of production, including those of discovery and development, as well as the normal return to capital. The cost of extraction can be significantly less than the price that the resource can obtain on the market not least when there is an important oligopolistic element in world markets, as is the case with oil. These rents can be a very attractive tax base for governments on both efficiency and equity grounds (IMF 2012, 10). Securing rent for the state requires care in the design of the fiscal regime, to avoid disincentivizing investors and because rent revenues can be highly volatile. To illustrate, the average profit measured in percentage of revenues among EI companies was between 25 and 30 percent in 2006. This compares with less than 20 percent for the pharmaceutical industry and with a mere 5 percent for the EI sector in 2002 (Ericsson 2012, 1). However, while rents in mining can occasionally be high, this is only at the peak of cycles (as in 2006). For large parts of the oil industry these rents are structural. There is nothing in mining that equates to the US$8 per barrel production costs of Saudi Arabia and the Islamic Republic of Iran. The challenge for some states is in the volumes of resource wealth, which will strain the capacity of the existing state system, aggravate capacity problems, and create tensions in its relations with investors.

Adverse environmental and social impacts

The EI sectors can have major adverse environmental and social impacts. In the past, these issues have not always been well recognized or addressed by governments, but good practice has improved greatly since the end of the 20th century. Avoiding or mitigating these impacts depends on appropriate legislation or regulation, enforcement capacity, and fiscal regimes that incentivize good behavior by the investor, while recognizing the costs involved and the need to internalize those costs. As more and more EI companies sign on to international environmental and social standards or implement their own, the challenge for many governments is to ensure that local communities, indigenous peoples, and other affected citizens are able to participate in decisions relating to the exploitation of the resource and benefit from the development of the resource.

Resource exhaustion

By their nature, oil, gas, and mining resources are non renewable. They will eventually be exhausted. This distinguishes these industries from most, perhaps all others and presents policy makers with a number of important issues, ranging from decisions on optimal rates of exploration, development, and exploitation (through fiscal regime design) to appropriate frameworks for macroeconomic planning. It can encourage fiscal discipline and long-term planning about how much of the resource wealth to consume and how much to save or invest.⁵ The challenge for governments is to take the finiteness of presently identified resources into account in their domestic planning and in their dealings with foreign investors, rather than to prepare for some kind of unlikely “resource apocalypse” when exhaustion occurs

Prominent political profile

Long viewed as strategic because of their pervasive influence on the economy and the scale of the revenues they generate, the petroleum and mining sectors have always attracted political attention. In certain circumstances, this attention can frustrate, or at least increase the difficulty of introducing, good sector management practices (van der Ploeg and Venables 2009). Transparency may present challenges to both governments and investors but helps diminish the risk of rumor and speculation among citizens about resource wealth management.

Enclave status

The production of minerals and hydrocarbons is often done in economic areas that are small in scale and geographically limited, with relatively few linkages to the rest of the economy. For offshore petroleum (both oil and gas), the remoteness from centers of population is even more evident. There is generally agreement now that the challenge for governments and investors is to ensure that such investments are designed or shaped to trigger wider developmental impacts

Lack of location mobility

In contrast to many other economic sectors, the extractives industries have few choices about locations. They have to locate where the resource is, increasing the prospects for conflict. This feature underlines the importance of community and local engagement if a project is to enjoy a sustainable relationship in the long term.

Innovation

Both hydrocarbons and mining industries are characterized by a high degree of innovation. In the former, for example, the introduction of hydraulic fracturing, or “fracking,” on a commercial scale has made their extraction more similar to conventional mining. By contrast, most innovation in mining comes in the form of low-key incremental improvements in existing processes. Disruptive technologies are uncommon. The development of solvent-extraction electro-winning in copper production stands out as an exception. It has increased processing efficiency significantly, and, as a result, production has continued to increase in spite of a decline in the quality of grades of ore mined. Mining does however show a trend toward becoming higher tech: in Western Australia iron ore mines make extensive use of driverless trucks, and more and more underground mining is being carried out remotely. The greatest challenge to governments lies in the unexpected implications of innovation for policy design. For example, unconventional oil and gas discoveries on a large scale in the United States have implications for coal use in Asia and for the prospects for new gas discoveries in East Africa.

INDIAN MINING INDUSTRY

Introduction

India holds a fair advantage in cost of production and conversion costs in steel and alumina. Its strategic location enables convenient exports to develop as well as the fast-developing Asian markets. India currently produces around 95 minerals which mainly include 10 metallic, 23 non-metallic, 3 atomic, 4 fuel and 55 minor minerals.

Rise in infrastructure development and automotive production are driving growth in the sector. Power and cement industries are also aiding growth in the metals and mining sector. Demand for iron and steel is set to continue, given the strong growth expectations for the residential and commercial building industry.

Market Size

India is the 3rd largest producer of coal. Coal production stood at 453.10 million tonnes in FY17. India has the 5th largest estimated coal reserves in the world, standing at 308.802 billion tonnes in FY16. In 2016, India contributed around 11 per cent of the world’s production of coal. India ranks 4th in terms of iron ore production globally. In FY17, production was expected to reach 175.51 million tonnes of iron ore. India has around 8 per cent of world’s deposits of iron ore.

India has become the 3rd largest steel producer in FY17 with the production of finished steel at 83.01 million tonnes. India stood as the 3rd largest crude steel producer in 2016, while its production increased to 90 million tonnes in FY16 as compared to 88 million tonnes in FY15. India accounted for 5.89% of the total steel production in the year 2016.

According to Ministry of Mines, India has the 7th largest bauxite reserves- around 2,908.85 million tonnes in FY17. Aluminium production stood at 1.7 million metric tonnes in FY17. India has vast mineral potential with mining leases granted for longer durations of 20 to 30 years.

Investments/ Developments

Cumulative FDI inflows into the mining sector between April 2000 and June 2017 stood at US$ 2.228 billion as per Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP).

- Metals and Minerals Trading Corporation of India (MMTC) Ltd is in talks with the National Mineral Development Corporation (NMDC) to sign a new five-year pact for exporting 2.6 million tonnes of iron to Japan and South Korean industries.
- Under the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act of 1957, FDI upto 100% under Automatic route is allowed for the mining and exploration of metal and non- metal ores including diamond, gold, silver and precious ores, while FDI upto 100% under Government route is allowed in for mining and mineral separation of titanium bearing minerals and its ores.
- National Aluminium Company (NALCO), a central government-owned entity, is set to join the club of million-tonne producers in the metal segment by 2020. NALCO has readied about INR 25,000 crore (US$ 3.72 billion) investments for increasing its alumina, aluminium and power production capacities.
- Adani Enterprises Ltd announced that it is ready to start work on the US$ 16.5 billion Carmichael mine. The project is expected to commence production in FY 2020-21 with an output of 25 million tonnes in the first phase.
- Hindustan Zinc announced that it will set up its first Zinc Fumer Plant in Rajasthan by 2018 with an investment of INR 570 crore (US$ 83.2 million). This plant will extract metals from waste and will have an annual production capacity of 3,000 tonnes.
- The Government of India is taking steps boost the country's domestic steel sector and raise its capacity to 300 million tonnes (MT) by 2030-31.
- JSW Steel proposed constructing a slurry pipeline project to transport iron ore and coal at competitive prices in Karnataka with an investment of INR 2,100 crore (US$ 3.36 billion). JSW Steel is currently operating a 12-million tonnes per annum integrated steel plant in the area.
- Mangal Credit and Fincorp announced plans of diversifying in iron ore mining by acquiring a mine near Goa. The 21 hectare mine consists of iron ore reserve worth US$ 223.11 million.

Road Ahead

There is significant scope for new mining capacities in iron ore, bauxite and coal and considerable opportunities for future discoveries of sub- surface deposits. The Ministry of Steel aims to increase the steel production capacity to 142.3 million tonnes by the end of 2017 indicating new opportunities in the sector. In February 2017, the country's coal ministry allowed private companies to engage into mining activities for commercial purposes.

Infrastructure projects continue to provide lucrative business opportunities for steel, zinc and aluminium producers. India's infrastructure sector is expected to grow at a CAGR of 35.65% over the period FY 2008-25. In the Union Budget 2017-18, the Government of India has allocated US$ 62.16 billion for infrastructure.

Iron and steel make up a core component of the real estate sector. Demand for these metals is set to continue given strong growth expectations for the residential and commercial building industry. Total housing shortage in the country stood at about 18.78 million at the start of the Twelfth Five Year Plan. This provides a big investment opportunity for residential building construction in coming years.

STRONG GROWTH IN INDIA'S METALS AND MINING SECTOR OVER THE YEARS

In FY16, India had 1,878 operative mines – excluding mining areas for minor minerals, crude petroleum, natural gas & atomic minerals.

Much of the above growth in the industry's value can be attributed to higher prices given that production volume growth was relatively lower at 3.2 per cent (total production stood at 716.3 million metric tonnes)

During 2011-16, value of ore & mineral imports into India witnessed a negative growth at a CAGR of -0.028 per cent

By FY16, India's iron ore imports are expected to decline by 60 per cent with the considerate improvement in the domestic production market

SERVICE OFFERINGS

Our Company caters to business segments under Coal & Mineral, Coal Bed Methane, Water resource Industry and Geotechnical services details of which are given below:

1. Coal & Mineral Exploration:

Core Drilling, RC (Reverse Circulation) Drilling, DTH (Down –the-Hole) Drilling & LD (Large Diameter) Drilling are some of the main forms of Mineral Exploration Drilling. We have successfully executed various mineral exploratory projects for a wide array of minerals, like – Coal, Iron Ore, Lead, Zinc, Copper, Gold, Chromite, Manganese & Atomic Minerals, both in India and overseas.

a. Wireline core drilling-

In this type of drilling, the wire line core barrel comprises of an inner tube which is receptacle of the core, that can be lifted to the surface through the rod string, without removing the drill rod string assembly (thus increasing the yield considerably), while the coring bit and the outer tube of the core barrel remain in the bore hole, that acts as a casing to avoid the collapse of the side wall.

b. Reverse Circulation drilling

Reverse Circulation (RC) Drilling is much faster than the Wireline Drilling and is mainly carried out in hard rock formation. Unlike wireline core drilling, RC drilling produces samples of rock cuttings instead of a sample of rock core. It uses a bit attached to a down- the hole hammer, to produce a hole and comprises of rods with inner and outer tubes. The drill cuttings produced, are returned to surface through inside the rods by reverse air circulation, which are then collected in various sample bags, to be analyzed by geologists for determining the overall mineral composition of the drilled holes.

c. Large Diameter Drilling

Large diameter core drilling is recommended for bulk sampling and where core of target samples are required.

d. Directional Drilling-

Drilling for deeper target is not only costly but is also quite difficult, if it is located in various pockets of mineralized ore. A single bore hole can be plugged back at a certain depth and deviated to make new boreholes. Sometimes, target located beneath a locality, river or environmentally sensitive area, makes it necessary to locate the drilling rig some distance away. For achieving drilling in the above mentioned challenging scenarios, Directional Drilling is the most suitable option.

In Directional Drilling, Down Hole Motor (DHM) is used to steer the borehole at desired path or direction and an adjustable bend sub at the front of the DHM controls the amount of deviation. In this method only the drill bit rotates and this is driven by the positive displacement pump (power section) at the top of the DHM.

2. CBM Exploration

a) Wire Line Core drilling

- Coal cores can be obtained with different techniques including conventional & wireline coring. Conventional coring is a cumbersome process, involving the removal of the entire string of drill pipes, for the recovery of the core, thereby resulting in long trip times of an hour or more. As coal samples begin to de-sorb gas while being lifted from the bottom of the well, such long trip times can result in loss of large volumes of methane gas. As an alternative, many operators now-a-days use wireline-coring technique, which can bring samples to the surface in 15 to 20 minutes, significantly reducing lost-gas volumes.

b) Coal Bed Methane (CBM)

Coal Bed Methane (CBM) or Coal-Mine Methane (CMM) is a form of natural greenhouse gas, which remains trapped in underground coal seams and is extracted, not only as a safety measure prior to mining the coal, but also for various domestic, commercial and industrial purposes. CBM is considered to be the most potential source of clean energy and hence is used as a fuel for power generation through gas fired generators.

3. CBM Production Drilling –

CBM recovery process requires drilling boreholes into a coal deposit and pumping out the ground water contained therein, thereby de-pressurizing the coal seam and thus allowing the gas to be released from the cleats & fissures of the coal matrix, up the bore well. High permeability, thick seams and high gas content are some of the crucial factors which are taken into account to evaluate the commercial viability of CBM projects. Retrieving trapped methane also helps minimize mining hazards and environmental impact.

4. Aquifer Mapping & Hydrogeological Services

Aquifer Mapping is a multi-disciplinary holistic scientific approach for aquifer characterization. Mapping of Aquifers helps to determine the quantity and the quality of groundwater in a particular area. We identify & map aquifers across the country, to quantify the available groundwater resources, and to propose plans appropriate to the scale of demand and aquifer characteristics.

We are equipped with multiple disciplines and scientific approaches, including remote sensing, hydrogeology, geophysics, hydrochemistry, drilling, groundwater modelling, and management for providing time bound & cost effective services for completion of Aquifer mapping studies.

5. Geological Services

It include geological requirements such as preparation of exploration schemes, core logging, core sampling, rock quality designation, geo technical logging , due diligence of an area, resistivity survey, magnetic survey, geological report presentation and geophysical logging.

We have Geological & Geophysical Services Division with a team of approx. 15 experienced Geoscientists, and is capable of providing on-site integrated exploration services, both for coal and other mineral resources like – Limestone, Atomic Minerals etc.

The Company can provide the following geological and geophysical services to its clients:

- Preparation of Exploration Schemes
- Core Logging
- Core Sampling

- Rock Quality Designation
- Geo Technical Logging
- Geological Mapping
- Due Diligence of area
- Resistivity Survey
- Magnetic Survey
- Geophysical Logging
- Geological Report Preparation

6. Geophysical Services

It includes geophysical well logging & surface surveys like electrical & magnetic surveys for exploration of coal & minerals. These surveys help in identification of coal & minerals by identifying physical anomalies.

7. Workover rig Services

Workover rig Services are required for a lot of applications i.e. to help prolong the productive life of an oil or gas well, routine repair and maintenance of oil and gas wells, recompletion of wells, re-drilling, and plug operations.

8. Motorised Directional Drilling Services

Motorized directional drilling is a technique through which the core hole is oriented to a particular path (direction) to hit the subsurface mineralized zone. In this technique an inhole motor is lowered at a particular depth in the hole through which the drilling is done to achieve a pre-decided angle & direction. The motor is then pulled out and normal core drilling is resumed.

9. Horizontal Directional Drilling Services

Horizontal directional drilling or HDD, is a trenchless method of installing underground pipe, conduit, or cable in a shallow arc using a drilling rig with an inclined ramp. Directional boring is used when trenching or excavating is not practical. It is suitable for jobs including road, landscape and river crossings, for infrastructure development such as telecommunications, power cable conduits, water lines, sewer lines, gas lines, oil lines, product pipelines, and environmental remediation casings. It is used for crossing waterways, roadways, shore approaches, congested areas, environmentally sensitive areas, and areas where other methods are costlier or not possible. It is used instead of other techniques to provide less traffic disruption, lower cost, deeper and/or longer installation, no access pit, shorter completion times, directional capabilities, and environmental safety.

10. Topographical Surveys & Geological Mapping

The survey has been done to map the topography of the area so that the depth of the mineral deposit is ascertained with respect to the mean sea level. Further the topography of the area is incorporated in the geological model. Our company has carried out topographic surveys for detail coal exploration for coal blocks done by us Central Mine Planning and Design Institute.

11. Geophysical Well Logging & Surface Geophysical Surveys.

Geophysical logging is carried out in drilled wells or boreholes to identify the formation, there depth, thickness & quality. This is the most accurate method for mineral identification.

Surface Geophysical Surveys are carried out to identify physical anomalies foe identification of minerals, faults & structural features.

12. Geo-Modelling & Geological Report Preparation

Geo-Modeling & Geological Report is presentation of processed & interpretation of exploration data collected during the exploration program. The processing is been carried out using geological modelling software & interpretation is carried out by experienced geoscientists. The report is presented in the format as per the client requirement.

13. Exploration Planning & Design

Before the start of an integrated exploration program, a detail exploration plan is designed based on the existing information of the area. The data is processed and an exploration plan is prepared proposing required drilling, surveys etc. and presented to client for their acceptance.

GLOBAL ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

For India, three external developments are of significant consequence. In the short run, the change in the outlook for global interest rates as a result of the US elections and the implied change in expectations of US fiscal and monetary policy will impact on India's capital flows and exchange rates. Markets are factoring in a regime change in advanced countries, especially US macroeconomic policy, with high expectations of fiscal stimulus and unwavering exit from unconventional monetary policies. The end of the 20-year bond rally and end to the corset of deflation and deflationary expectations are within sight. Second, the medium-term political outlook for globalisation and in particular for the world's "political carrying capacity for globalisation" may have changed in the wake of recent developments. In the short run a strong dollar and declining competitiveness might exacerbate the lure of protectionist policies. These follow on on-going trends—documented widely—about stagnant or declining trade at the global level. This changed outlook will affect India's export and growth prospects

Third, developments in the US, especially the rise of the dollar, will have implications for China's currency and currency policy. If China is able to successfully re-balance its economy, the spill over effects on India and the rest of the world will be positive. On, the other hand, further declines in the yuan, even if dollar-induced, could interact with underlying vulnerabilities to create disruptions in China that could have negative spill overs for India. For China, there are at least two difficult balancing acts with respect to the currency. Domestically, a declining currency (and credit expansion) props up the economy in the short run but delay rebalancing while also adding to the medium term challenges. Internationally, allowing the currency to weaken in response to capital flight risks creating trade frictions but imposing capital controls discourages FDI and undermines China's ambitions to establish the Yuan as a reserve currency. China with its underlying vulnerabilities remains the country to watch for its potential to unsettle the global economy.

REVIEW OF MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS IN INDIAN ECONOMY

The Indian economy has continued to consolidate the gains achieved in restoring macroeconomic stability. Real GDP growth in the first half of the year was 7.2 percent, on the weaker side of the 7.0-7.75 per cent projection in the Economic Survey 2015-16 and somewhat lower than the 7.6 percent rate recorded in the second half of 2015-16 (Figure 1a). The main problem was fixed investment, which declined sharply as stressed balance sheets in the corporate sector continued to take a toll on firms' spending plans. On the positive side, the economy was buoyed by government consumption, as the 7th Pay Commission salary recommendations were implemented, and by the long-awaited start of an export recovery as demand in advanced countries began to accelerate. Nominal GDP growth recovered to respectable levels, reversing the sharp and worrisome dip that had occurred in the first half of 2015-16 (Figure 1b).

The major highlights of the sectoral growth outcome of the first half of 2016-17 were: (i) moderation in industrial and nongovernment service sectors; (ii) the modest pick-up in agricultural growth on the back of improved monsoon; and (iii) strong growth in public administration and defence services—dampeners on and catalysts to growth almost balancing each other and producing a real Gross Value Addition (GVA) growth (7.2 percent), quite similar to the one (7.1 per cent) in H2 2015-16 (Figure 1b).

Inflation this year has been characterized by two distinctive features. The Consumer Price Index (CPI)-New Series inflation, which averaged 4.9 per cent during April-December 2016, has displayed a downward trend since July when it became apparent that kharif agricultural production in general, and pulses in particular would be bountiful. The decline in pulses prices has contributed substantially to the decline in CPI inflation which reached 3.4 percent at end-December. The second distinctive feature has been the reversal of WPI inflation, from a trough of (-)5.1 percent in August 2015 to 3.4 percent at end-December 2016, on the back of rising international oil prices. The wedge between CPI and WPI inflation, which had serious implications for the measurement of GDP discussed in MYEA (Box 3, Chapter 1, MYEA 2015-16), has narrowed considerably. Core inflation has, however, been more stable, hovering around 4.5 percent to 5 percent for the year so far. The outlook for the year as a whole is for CPI inflation to be below the RBI's target of 5 percent, a trend likely to be assisted by demonetisation.

External Sector

Similarly, the external position appears robust having successfully weathered the sizeable redemption of Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR) deposits in late 2016, and the volatility associated with the US election and demonetisation. The current account deficit has declined to reach about 0.3 percent of GDP in the first half of FY2017. Foreign exchange reserves are at comfortable levels, having risen from around US$350 billion at end-January 2016 to US$ 360 billion at end-December 2016 and are well above standard norms for reserve adequacy. In part, surging net FDI inflows, which grew from 1.7 percent of GDP in FY2016 to 3.2 percent of GDP in the second quarter of FY2017, helped the balance-of-payments

The trade deficit declined by 23.5 per cent in April-December 2016 over corresponding period of previous year. During the first half of the fiscal year, the main factor was the contraction in imports, which was far steeper than the fall in exports. But during October- December, both exports and imports started a long-awaited recovery, growing at an average rate of more than 5 per cent. The improvement in exports appears to be linked to improvements in the world economy, led by better growth in the US and Germany. On the import side, the advantage on account of benign international oil prices has receded and is likely to exercise upward pressure on the import bill in the short to medium term. Meanwhile, the net services surplus declined in the first half, as software service exports slowed and financial service exports declined. Net private remittances declined by $4.5 bn in the first half of 2016-17 compared to the same period of 2015-16, weighed down by the lagged effects of the oil price decline, which affected inflows from the Gulf region.

Fiscal Position

Trends in the fiscal sector in the first half have been unexceptional and the central government is committed to achieving its fiscal deficit target of 3.5 percent of GDP this year. Excise duties and services taxes have benefitted from the additional revenue measures introduced last year. The most notable feature has been the over-performance (even relative to budget estimates) of excise duties in turn based on buoyant petroleum consumption: real consumption of petroleum products (petrol) increased by 11.2 percent during April-December 2016 compared to same period in the previous year. Indirect taxes, especially petroleum excises, have held up even after demonetisation in part due to the exemption of petroleum products from its scope. More broadly, tax collections have held up to a greater extent than expected possibly because of payment of dues in demonetised notes was permitted. Non-tax revenues have been challenged owing to shortfall in spectrum and disinvestment receipts but also to forecast optimism; the stress in public sector enterprises has also reduced dividend payments.

State government finances are under stress. The consolidated deficit of the states has increased steadily in recent years, rising from 2.5 percent of GDP in 2014-15 to 3.6 percent of GDP in 2015-16, in part because of the UDAY scheme. The budgeted numbers suggest there will be an improvement this year. However, markets are anticipating some slippage, on account of the expected growth slowdown, reduced revenues from stamp duties, and implementation of their own Pay Commissions. For these reasons, the spread on state bonds over government securities jumped to 75 basis points in the January 2017 auction from 45 basis points in October 2016. For the general government as a whole, there is an improvement in the fiscal deficit with and without UDAY scheme.

OUTLOOK FOR 2016-17

This year's outlook must be evaluated in the wake of the November 8 action to demonetize the high denomination notes. But it is first important to understand the analytics of the demonetisation shock in the short run. Demonetisation affects the economy through three different channels. It is potentially: 1) an aggregate demand shock because it reduces the supply of money and affects private wealth, especially of those holding unaccounted money; 2) an aggregate supply shock to the extent that economic activity relies on cash as an input (for example, agricultural production might be affected since sowing requires the use of labour traditionally paid in cash); and 3) an uncertainty shock because economic agents face imponderables related to the magnitude and duration of the cash shortage and the policy responses (perhaps causing consumers to defer or reduce discretionary consumption and firms to scale back investments).

Demonetisation is also very unusual in its monetary consequences. It has reduced sharply, the supply of one type of money— cash—while increasing almost to the same extent another type of money— demand deposits. This is because the demonetized cash was required to be deposited in the banking system. In the third quarter of FY2017 (when demonetisation was introduced), cash declined by 9.4 percent, demand deposits increased by 43 percent, and growth in the sum of the two by 11.3 percent.

The price counterparts of this unusual aspect of demonetisation are the surge in the price of cash (inferred largely through queues and restrictions), on the one hand; and the decline in interest rates on the lending rate (based on the marginal cost of funds) by 90 basis points since November 9; on deposits (by about 25 basis points); and on g-secs on the other (by about 32 basis points).

There is yet another dimension of demonetisation that must be kept in mind. By definition, all these quantity and price impacts will self-correct by amounts that will depend on the pace at which the economy is remonetized and policy restrictions eased. As this occurs, consumers will run down their bank deposits and increase their cash holdings. Of course, it is possible, even likely that the self-correction will not be complete because in the new equilibrium, aggregate cash holdings (as a share of banking deposits and GDP) are likely to be lower than before.

Anecdotal and other survey data abound on the impact of demonetisation. But we are interested in a macro-assessment and hence focus on five broad indicators: Agricultural (Rabi) sowing; Indirect tax revenue, as a broad gauge of production and sales; Auto sales, as a measure of discretionary consumer spending and two-wheelers, as the best indicator of both rural and less affluent demand; Real credit growth; and Real estate prices. Contrary to early fears, as of January 15, 2017 aggregate sowing of the two major rabi crops—wheat and pulses (gram)—exceeded last year’s planting by 7.1 percent and 10.7 percent, respectively. Favourable weather and moisture conditions presage an increase in production. To what extent these favourable factors will be attenuated will depend on whether farmers’ access to inputs—fertilizer, credit, and labour—was affected by the cash shortage.

To estimate a demonetisation effect, one needs to start with the counterfactual. Our best estimate of growth in the absence of demonetisation is 11¼ percent in nominal terms (slightly higher than last year’s Survey forecast because of the faster rebound in WPI inflation, but lower than the CSO’s advance estimate of 11.9 percent) and 7 percent in real terms (in line with both projections).

Finally, demonetisation will afford an interesting natural experiment on the substitutability between cash and other forms of money. Demonetisation has driven a sharp and dramatic wedge in the supply of these two: if cash and other forms are substitutable, the impact will be relatively muted; if, on the other hand, cash is not substitutable the impact will be greater.

OUTLOOK FOR 2017-18

Turning to the outlook for 2017-18, we need to examine each of the components of aggregate demand: exports, consumption, private investment and government.

As discussed earlier, India’s exports appear to be recovering, based on an uptick in global economic activity. This is expected to continue in the aftermath of the US elections and expectations of a fiscal stimulus. The IMF’s January update of its World Economic Outlook forecast is projecting an increase in global growth from 3.1 percent in 2016 to 3.4 percent in 2017, with a corresponding increase in growth for advanced economies from 1.6 percent to 1.9 percent. Given the high elasticity of Indian real export growth to global GDP, exports could contribute to higher growth next year, by as much as 1 percentage point.

The outlook for private consumption is less clear. International oil prices are expected to be about 10-15 percent higher in 2017 compared to 2016, which would create a drag of about 0.5 percentage points. On the other hand, consumption is expected to receive a boost from two sources: catch-up after the demonetisation-induced reduction in the last two quarters of 2016-17; and cheaper borrowing costs, which are likely to be lower in 2017 than 2016 by as much as 75 to 100 basis points. As a result, spending on housing and consumer durables and semi-durables could rise smartly. It is too early to predict prospects for the monsoon in 2017 and hence agricultural production. But the higher is agricultural growth this year, the less likely that there would be an extra boost to GDP growth next year.

Since no clear progress is yet visible in tackling the twin balance sheet problem, private investment is unlikely to recover significantly from the levels of FY2017. Some of this weakness could be offset through higher public investment, but that would depend on the stance of fiscal policy next year, which has to balance the short-term requirements of an economy recovering from demonetisation against the medium-term necessity of adhering to fiscal discipline—and the need to be seen as doing so. Putting these factors together, we expect real GDP growth to be in the 6¾ to 7½ percent range in FY2018. Even under this forecast, India would remain the fastest growing major economy in the world.

There are three main downside risks to the forecast. First, the extent to which the effects of demonetisation could linger into next year, especially if uncertainty remains on the policy response. Currency shortages also affect supplies of certain agricultural products, especially milk (where procurement has been low), sugar (where cane availability and drought in the southern states will restrict production), and potatoes and onions (where sowings have been low). Vigilance is essential to prevent other agricultural products becoming in 2017-18 what pulses was in 2015-16.

Second, geopolitics could take oil prices up further than forecast. The ability of shale oil production to respond quickly should contain the risks of a sharp increase, but even if prices rose merely to $60-65/barrel the Indian economy would nonetheless be affected by way of reduced consumption; less room for public investment; and lower corporate margins, further denting private investment. The scope for monetary easing might also narrow, if higher oil prices stoked inflationary pressure.

Third, there are risks from the possible eruption of trade tensions amongst the major countries, triggered by geo-politics or currency movements. This could reduce global growth and trigger capital flight from emerging markets. The one significant upside possibility is a strong rebound in global demand and hence in India's exports. There are some nascent signs of that in the last two quarters. A strong export recovery would have broader spill over effects to investment.

Fiscal outlook

The fiscal outlook for the central government for next year will be marked by three factors. First, the increase in the tax to GDP ratio of about 0.5 percentage points in each of the last two years, owing to the oil windfall will disappear. In fact, excise-related taxes will decline by about 0.1 percentage point of GDP, a swing of about 0.6 percentage points relative to FY2017.

Second, there will be a fiscal windfall both from the high denomination notes that are not returned to the RBI and from higher tax collections as a result of increased disclosure under the Pradhan Mantra Garib Kalyan Yojana (PMGKY). Both of these are likely to be one-off in nature, and in both cases the magnitudes are uncertain.

A third factor will be the implementation of the GST. It appears that the GST will probably be implemented later in the fiscal year. The transition to the GST is so complicated from an administrative and technology perspective that revenue collection will take some time to reach full potential. Combined with the government's commitment to compensating the states for any shortfall in their own GST collections (relative to a baseline of 14 percent increase), the outlook must be cautious with respect to revenue collections. The fiscal gains from implementing the GST and demonetisation, while almost certain to occur, will probably take time to be fully realized. In addition, muted non-tax revenues and allowances granted under the 7th Pay Commission could add to pressures on the deficit.

The macroeconomic policy stance for 2017-18

An economy recovering from demonetisation will need policy support. On the assumption that the equilibrium cash-GDP ratio will be lower than before November 8, the banking system will benefit from a higher level of deposits. Thus, market interest rates—deposits, lending, and yields on g-secs—should be lower in 2017-18 than 2016-17. This will provide a boost to the economy (provided, of course, liquidity is no longer a binding constraint). A corollary is that policy rates can be lower not necessarily to lead and nudge market rates but to validate them. Of course, any sharp uptick in oil prices and those of agricultural products, would limit the scope for monetary easing.

Fiscal policy is another potential source of policy support. This year the arguments may be slightly different from those of last year in two respects. Unlike last year, there is more cyclical weakness on account of demonetisation. Moreover, the government has acquired more credibility because of posting steady and consistent improvements in the fiscal situation for three consecutive years, the central government fiscal deficit declining from 4.5 percent of GDP in 2013-14 to 4.1 percent, 3.9 percent, and 3.5 percent in the following three years. But fiscal policy needs to balance the cyclical imperatives with medium term issues relating to prudence and credibility.

One key question will be the use of the fiscal windfall (comprising the unreturned cash and additional receipts under the PMGKY) which is still uncertain. Since the windfall to the public sector is both one off and a wealth gain not an income gain, it should be deployed to strengthening the government's balance sheet rather than being used for government consumption, especially in the form of programs that create permanent entitlements. In this light, the best use of the windfall would be to create a public sector asset reconstruction company so that the twin balance sheet problem can be addressed, facilitating credit and investment revival; or toward the compensation fund for the GST that would allow the rates to be lowered and simplified; or toward debt reduction. The windfall should not influence decisions about the conduct of fiscal policy going forward.

Perhaps the most important reforms to boost growth will be structural. In addition to those spelt out in Section 1—strategic disinvestment, tax reform, subsidy rationalization—it is imperative to address directly the twin balance sheet problem. The problem is large, persistent and difficult, will not correct itself even if growth picks up and interest rates decline, and current attempts have proved grossly inadequate. It may be time to consider something like a public sector asset reconstruction company.

Another area of reform relates to labour. Given the difficulty of reforming labour laws per se, the thrust could be to move towards affording greater choice to workers which would foster competition amongst service providers. Choices would relate to: whether they want to make their own contribution to the Employees' Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO); whether the employers' contribution should go to the EPFO or the National Pension Scheme; and whether to contribute to the Employee State Insurance (ESI) or an alternative medical insurance program. At the same time, there could be a gradual move to ensure that at least compliance with the central labour laws is made paperless, presence less, and cashless. One radical idea to consider is the provision of a universal basic income. But another more modest proposal worth embracing is procedural: a standstill on new government programs, a commitment to assess every new program only if it can be shown to demonstrably address the limitations of an existing one that is similar to the proposed one; and a commitment to evaluate and phase down existing programs that are not serving their purpose.

SERVICE SECTOR IN INDIA

Introduction

The services sector is not only the dominant sector in India's GDP, but has also attracted significant foreign investment flows, contributed significantly to exports as well as provided large-scale employment. India's services sector covers a wide variety of activities such as trade, hotel and restaurants, transport, storage and communication, financing, insurance, real estate, business services, community, social and personal services, and services associated with construction.

Market Size

The services sector is the key driver of India's economic growth. The sector contributed around 53.8 per cent of its Gross Value Added in 2016-17 and employed 28.6 per cent of the total population. Net services exports from India reached US$ 67.5 billion in 2016-17 while the sector attracted 60.7 per cent of India's total FDI inflows. India's score in the Nikkei/IHS Market Services Purchasing Managers Index reached an eight month high of 53.1 in June, 2017, supported by the rise in new business orders, and heavy growth in the private sector output.

The Central Statistics Office's (CSO) provisional estimates of Gross Value Added (GVA) in FY 2016-17 (PE) indicate that the service sector grew 7.74 per cent year-on-year to Rs 21.43 trillion (US$ 332.74 billion). According to a report called 'The India Opportunity' by leading research firm Market Research Store, the Indian mobile services market is expected to reach $37 billion in 2017 and grow by 10.3 per cent year-on-year to reach US$ 103.9 billion by 2020. Out of overall services sector, the sub-sector comprising financial services, real estate and professional services contributed US$ 305.8 billion or 20.5 per cent to the GDP. The sub-sector of community, social and personal services contributed US$ 188.2 billion or 12.6 per cent to the GDP.

Investments

The Indian services sector which includes financial, banking, insurance, non-financial/business, outsourcing, research and development, courier and technical test analysis, has attracted FDI equity inflows in the period April 2000-June 2017, amounting to about US$ 61.36 billion which is about 17.92 per cent of the total foreign inflows, according to the Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP).

Some of the developments and major investments by companies in the services sector in the recent past are as follows:

- UrbanClap, an Indian home services start-up, has raised US$ 21 million in a series C funding round led by Vy Capital, an internet investment fund. The company will use the funds for expansion to more cities, investment in technology and addition of vendors.
- Piramal Finance Ltd, an arm of Piramal Enterprises Ltd, invested Rs 485 crore (US$ 74.92 million) in the subsidiary of Apollo International Ltd, called Apollo LogiSolutions (ALS), a logistics solutions provider.
- MPaani Solutions Pvt. Ltd, a consumer and retailer data analytics start-up, has raised US$ 1.35 million in a pre-series A funding round led by IDG Ventures with the aim of deploying capital for scaling technology and data science functions along with spending on marketing and sales.
- FM Logistic Asia, outlined plans of investing around EUR 50 million (US$ 56.14 million) in India in the next four years, to contribute to a better efficiency of logistics market in the country.
- Caisse de Dépôt et Placement du Québec (CDPQ), Canada's second largest pension fund, plans to invest around US$ 155 million to acquire a minority stake in TVS Logistics Services Limited, a privately held subsidiary of the TVS Group.
- WNS Global Services has made an announcement to acquire Denali Sourcing Services for US$ 40 million, with the aim of improving its sourcing and procurement capabilities.
- Uber Technologies Inc plans to launch UberEATS, its food delivery service to India, with investments made across multiple cities and regions, as per Mr Allen Penn, Head, Asia-Pacific, UberEATS.
- International Finance Corporation (IFC), the investment arm of World Bank, plans to invest around US$ 10 million Bengaluru-based online freight-booking service provider Zinka Logistics, which will be used to expand Zinka's service offerings and further technology development.
- Reliance Jio Infocomm Ltd. and Uber have announced a strategic partnership, which will enable Uber riders to pay for their rides using JioMoney.
- The domestic and foreign logistic companies are optimistic about prospects in the logistics sector in India, and are actively making investments plans to improve earnings and streamline operations.

Government Initiatives

The Government of India recognises the importance of promoting growth in services sectors and provides several incentives in wide variety of sectors such as health care, tourism, education, engineering, communications, transportation, information technology, banking, finance, management, among others.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has stated that India's priority will be to work towards trade facilitation agreement (TFA) for services, which is expected to help in the smooth movement of professionals.

The Government of India has adopted a few initiatives in the recent past. Some of these are as follows:

- Ministry of Civil Aviation, Government of India, launched 'DigiYatra', a digital platform for air travellers that aims to develop a digital ecosystem providing consistent service and a delightful experience at every touch point of the journey.
- Mr Nitin Gadkari, Minister of Road Transport and Highways and Shipping, Government of India, launched INAM-Pro's upgraded version, INAM-Pro +, an online platform to bring together buyers and sellers of construction materials, equipment/machinery and services.
- The Indian service sector is expected to facilitate a knowledge based economy, and the manufacturing sector will be dominated by services as a result of servicification of manufacturing, said Ms Nirmala Sitharaman, Minister of Commerce and Industry, Government of India.
- The Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology has launched a services portal, which aims to provide seamless access to government services related to education, health, electricity, water and local services, justice and law, pensions and benefits, through a single window.

Road Ahead

Services sector growth is governed by both domestic and global factors. The Indian facilities management market is expected to grow at 17 per cent CAGR between 2015 and 2020 and surpass the US$19 billion mark supported by booming real estate, retail, and hospitality sectors. The performance of trade, hotels and restaurants, and transport, storage and communication sectors are expected to improve in FY17. The financing, insurance, real estate, and business services sectors are also expected to continue their good run in FY17.

The implementation of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) would create a common national market and reduce the overall tax burden on goods. It is expected to reduce costs in the long run on account of availability of GST input credit, which will result in the reduction in prices of services.

GLOBAL MINING INDUSTRY

INTRODUCTION

Oil, gas, and mineral resource wealth is widespread among developing states, where it frequently accounts for a large share of gross domestic product, export earnings, government revenues, and jobs.¹ Its potential for economic and social transformation is evident for any country capable of harnessing it.² Done effectively, in a single generation converting these non renewable natural resources into capital can allow a country to transition from poverty to at least middle-income status and enable its citizens to enjoy a better quality of life. For low-income countries dependent on aid, a policy shift toward the extractive industries (EIs) offers the prospect of an economy more diverse than one defined by subsistence agriculture. It can help lead the way toward a balanced budget, a reduction in foreign debt, savings, and an opportunity to develop new industries.

For countries emerging from serious conflict or severe economic misfortune, such a shift offers the prospect of a fresh start. It is not surprising that the number of countries seeking to use oil, gas, and mining resources to undergird social transformation is increasing significantly.³ No fewer than 81 countries now have economies driven by these resources,⁴ and almost 80 percent of them have per capita income below the global average—the incentive for their efforts. Yet EI is a sector that has aroused far more controversy than most and that raises many cautionary flags to newcomers. Contrary to expectations, a significant feature of natural resource development is that over half of the economies it has driven are not catching up (McKinsey Global Institute 2013, 6). Since 1995 they have failed to match the global un weighted average per capita growth rate. Even among those economies that have experienced long-term, above average economic growth, it can be argued that they have not always enhanced prosperity in the wider sense: growth in productivity, resilience, and connectivity, for example. For many years EIs' relationship to sustainability has been questioned. In a fair number of cases these industries have brought a surge of activity and investment that has triggered high expectations, only to disappoint, as the benefits are retained by a few and the costs are borne by many. They have been called a "resource curse."

Development of the country in which the operations take place may not necessarily follow large-scale investment, at least not in the sense that investment generates long-term development impacts. In some cases, the country may even become worse off, depending on the human development indicators used, particularly environment-related indicators. This has led some to conclude that the discovery and development of oil, gas, and minerals is not a blessing at all or even a source of opportunities to accelerate economic and social development. This debate has been thrown into sharp relief by the sudden end of the long commodities boom that benefited resource-rich countries during the early 2000s, when oil and metal prices reached historic highs. The reversal in commodity prices has underlined the vulnerability of this industry to volatility, unpredictability, and periodic shocks. Preparation for downward swings as well as upward swings is an essential task for any existing or aspiring resource-rich state. If a single lesson has been learned from this debate, it is the need for governance structures that can ensure that short-term benefits are not obtained at the expense of long term sustainability.

Yet many citizens will find that the challenges of natural resource management are ones for which their governments are not well prepared. Moving forward is more than a matter of installing or building "capacity." It requires governments to understand how what is commonly described as "good practice" is continually modified and improved by research and comparative analysis, to test fresh approaches in a country's unique context, and at the same time to persuade vested interests of the need for change. In practical terms, governments in resource-rich countries and countries that appear to have good resource potential will often inherit legal and institutional frameworks for EI activity that need to be reformed. In some countries, there may be only a patchwork of contracts in place, hardly meriting the consistency and cohesion implied by the commonly used notion of a framework. Policies that envisage long-term, resource-led development will often have to be designed from scratch. In tackling these policy challenges, governments of resource-rich developing countries will quickly become aware of the current wide range of opinions and perspectives on resource-led development, bolstered by an impressive number of case studies and volumes of empirical data.⁶ Some will caution them that negative economic, environmental, and social effects can outweigh the potential benefits of natural resource development.

However, recent search has shown that there is nothing inevitable about either negative or positive links.⁷ A growing body of opinion, discussed in this and in the following chapters, argues that discoveries of oil, gas, or minerals can contribute positively to a country's overall agenda for social and economic development if the challenges of resource management can be met successfully within the constraints imposed by environmental considerations. Many of those challenges are now thought to lie within the institutional or governance frameworks of the countries themselves. Governments and citizens in countries seeking to promote resource-led development must ask themselves, What should our priorities be and what choices are open to us? The first question they should address is whether oil, gas, or other mineral exploitation is a good course of action or not. This is especially true in areas of high conservation value. There will be some situations where environmental (or social and cultural) factors are so significant, or occasions when the negative impacts cannot be reliably predicted, that oil, gas, and mining must be considered an incompatible option and a cautious approach should be adopted.

Investment in Extractive Industry

Investment in the extractive industry (EI) sectors (oil, gas, and mining) presents challenges to policy makers. They arise at the policy design and legal framework stage and are evident in subsequent stages—the management and allocation of revenues and, ultimately, the sustainable development of these resources. Some, perhaps many of these features are common to all three sectors, such as the extraction of resources from under the ground or the seabed,¹ their exhaustibility, or their exposure to a high degree of price volatility. Others are unique to each sector. For example, oil and gas development are alike at the upstream stage (exploration and production), but natural gas takes on distinct characteristics in its transportation and distribution phases. From a commercial point of view, oil is riskier to find than the mineral deposits typically sought by mining companies, but once oil is found in commercial quantities, the risk is reduced relative to the commercial risk of producing minerals from mining. (Note, however, that this does not apply to environmental risk.) Gas is different again, with its risk profile requiring a complex, expensive infrastructure and a detailed contractual regime to support development. Effective management in the public interest requires recognition of both the common and the unique features of EI in the design of policies and institutions. Chapter 3 examines the fundamental characteristics of EI sector investment, from a perspective that gives priority to public policy making and the design of appropriate institutional arrangements in the public sector. It identifies the common features and the key differences among EI sectors and in their investment dynamics. It focuses on the relationships that governments have or seek to have with investors in the EI sector rather than on how governments themselves can respond to the challenges and opportunities of natural resource-led development (the subject of chapter 2). Some features of the investor-state relationship are relatively constant over time, while others are more dynamic, such as the structure of the industry. It has experienced significant change and become more complex in recent years, due in part to companies from emerging markets making strategic investments aimed at securing future supplies of energy and minerals. There are many aspects of this investor-state dynamism that present challenges to policy advisers and decision makers in resource-rich states. For example: What kind of company or pattern of companies is best suited to achieve a country's policy on extractives and development generally? The choice is wide. Alongside long-established companies from the Organisation of Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries, there are state-owned enterprises from Malaysia, the Middle East, and the Republic of Korea and new players from Brazil, China, India, and the Russian Federation, all making significant impacts. Significant diversity in industry ownership and financing structures has emerged from the resulting South-South pattern of investment; the use of resource-for-infrastructure deals is one example of the latter. Moreover, the growing number of so-called junior or mid-cap companies as investors means that a focus by policy makers and their advisers on the “supermajor” companies that long dominated the EI sector is now inappropriate. This diversity is also evident in the destinations of investment, the points along the exploration-to-extraction continuum and across energy and other mineral commodities (Barma, Kaiser, Le, and Vinuela 2012). A further element of complexity in investor-state relations is the international character of investment in the EI sectors. More than ever, there are opportunities for investors to structure their operations, on- and offshore, to take advantage of this context. As a result, national tax and regulatory authorities face challenges in regime design, monitoring, and enforcement.

COMMON FEATURES OF THE EXTRACTIVE INDUSTRIES

Long, risky, and costly exploration and development

Each of the EI sectors is characterized by long, risky, costly, and very capital-intensive development.² For oil and gas, there is additionally a high cost at the exploration stage, with dry wells and resulting losses being common. A state that wishes to go it alone in the EI sector needs significant financial resources and an economy with sufficient diversity to allay concerns about EI sector investment risk (Boadway and Keen 2010). States that, more typically, choose to attract and rely on international investment, need to have in place a legal, contractual, and fiscal regime that investors can understand and trust. These states must also have a political track record that provides investors with reasonable assurances against adverse changes when a major discovery is made and/or exploitation is under way. Conditions and assumptions that exist at the beginning of a project—at the time when laws are drafted and contracts awarded—are almost certain to change over the course of the project investment. Initial decisions are usually made when there is great uncertainty about the sector's potential, based on what is known about the geology at the time of exploration. There is also uncertainty about the future economics, markets, risks, and politics that will affect the project. The incentive for a state to revisit the terms of the initial bargain struck is increased by the shift in bargaining power that occurs in the event of a commercial discovery and a substantial investment by the foreign investor.

Sophisticated management and specialized technology

A second common feature is the dependence of the EI sectors on sophisticated management and specialized technology.³ This dependence affects the development of host-state institutional capacity. States developing their EI sector must have sufficient institutional capacity to adequately oversee sector operations and for adopting the competitive licensing, contractual, and fiscal regimes required to attract needed skills and technology. The challenge here lies in finding ways of enabling a transfer of expertise and sourcing of business to local firms in order to ensure a long-term benefit to the domestic economy.

Asymmetric access to information

Partly due to the complex management skills and technology that characterize the EI sectors, governments are at an informational disadvantage vis-à-vis international investors and operators (Stiglitz 1989; Nutavoot 2004). The government is likely to be informed about its future fiscal intentions, but the private investor undertaking exploration and development will probably be better informed about technical and commercial aspects of a project. This has important implications for the design of license or contract award procedures, fiscal design, and fiscal administration as well as the engagement of outside technical assistance. It can also be the root of subsequent dissatisfaction by a government about the terms negotiated with investors by its predecessor(s) and trigger demands for a review of those terms. With increasing sources of competition in the EI sector, and the role of national resource companies, this is less of a problem than it once was. Access to information remains a challenge, however, for many governments in resource-rich economies and is compounded by a tendency of some of them to be overly secretive about such information once it has been obtained.

Price volatility

A fourth feature common to both the petroleum and mining sectors is the volatility of prices, costs, and rents. The extreme volatility of prices not only poses macroeconomic management challenges but also raises issues about the design of fiscal terms. A fundamental policy issue with which governments must constantly grapple is the question of how the burden of the risk of price and revenue volatility should be divided between the investor and the government. Volatile commodity prices can also have dramatic impacts on a country's exchange rate, with the effect of driving up the value of the currency if commodity prices are rising and pushing it lower when they fall. This will be worsened by capital inflows and outflows. The volatility or variability of costs receives much less attention, but deserves more. EI costs vary widely across time and across projects, creating significant issues for both the design of fiscal regimes and their administration. When costs soar for investors, as can happen in both the mining and hydrocarbon sectors, tensions with governments are likely to result from the necessary remedial actions. Rents (discussed in the following subsection) are also volatile as a result of dramatic fluctuations in price. The challenge lies less in the wide variability of prices than in the difficulty in predicting them. Most forecasts about pricing turn out to be wrong (IMF 2012, 10). The consequences can be severe. Besides the impacts of variation on the size of resource rents (which creates difficulties for planning), longterm price trends can make it economically unfeasible for investors to extract reserves, even if technology has improved. This can leave assets stranded.

Substantial rents

Both the petroleum and mining sectors are capable of generating very substantial economic rents. By rent is meant the revenues in excess of all costs of production, including those of discovery and development, as well as the normal return to capital. The cost of extraction can be significantly less than the price that the resource can obtain on the market not least when there is an important oligopolistic element in world markets, as is the case with oil. These rents can be a very attractive tax base for governments on both efficiency and equity grounds (IMF 2012, 10). Securing rent for the state requires care in the design of the fiscal regime, to avoid disincentivizing investors and because rent revenues can be highly volatile. To illustrate, the average profit measured in percentage of revenues among EI companies was between 25 and 30 percent in 2006. This compares with less than 20 percent for the pharmaceutical industry and with a mere 5 percent for the EI sector in 2002 (Ericsson 2012, 1). However, while rents in mining can occasionally be high, this is only at the peak of cycles (as in 2006). For large parts of the oil industry these rents are structural. There is nothing in mining that equates to the US$8 per barrel production costs of Saudi Arabia and the Islamic Republic of Iran. The challenge for some states is in the volumes of resource wealth, which will strain the capacity of the existing state system, aggravate capacity problems, and create tensions in its relations with investors.

Adverse environmental and social impacts

The EI sectors can have major adverse environmental and social impacts. In the past, these issues have not always been well recognized or addressed by governments, but good practice has improved greatly since the end of the 20th century. Avoiding or mitigating these impacts depends on appropriate legislation or regulation, enforcement capacity, and fiscal regimes that incentivize good behavior by the investor, while recognizing the costs involved and the need to internalize those costs. As more and more EI companies sign on to international environmental and social standards or implement their own, the challenge for many governments is to ensure that local communities, indigenous peoples, and other affected citizens are able to participate in decisions relating to the exploitation of the resource and benefit from the development of the resource.

Resource exhaustion

By their nature, oil, gas, and mining resources are non renewable. They will eventually be exhausted. This distinguishes these industries from most, perhaps all others and presents policy makers with a number of important issues, ranging from decisions on optimal rates of exploration, development, and exploitation (through fiscal regime design) to appropriate frameworks for macroeconomic planning. It can encourage fiscal discipline and long-term planning about how much of the resource wealth to consume and how much to save or invest.⁵ The challenge for governments is to take the finiteness of presently identified resources into account in their domestic planning and in their dealings with foreign investors, rather than to prepare for some kind of unlikely “resource apocalypse” when exhaustion occurs

Prominent political profile

Long viewed as strategic because of their pervasive influence on the economy and the scale of the revenues they generate, the petroleum and mining sectors have always attracted political attention. In certain circumstances, this attention can frustrate, or at least increase the difficulty of introducing, good sector management practices (van der Ploeg and Venables 2009). Transparency may present challenges to both governments and investors but helps diminish the risk of rumor and speculation among citizens about resource wealth management.

Enclave status

The production of minerals and hydrocarbons is often done in economic areas that are small in scale and geographically limited, with relatively few linkages to the rest of the economy. For offshore petroleum (both oil and gas), the remoteness from centers of population is even more evident. There is generally agreement now that the challenge for governments and investors is to ensure that such investments are designed or shaped to trigger wider developmental impacts

Lack of location mobility

In contrast to many other economic sectors, the extractives industries have few choices about locations. They have to locate where the resource is, increasing the prospects for conflict. This feature underlines the importance of community and local engagement if a project is to enjoy a sustainable relationship in the long term.

Innovation

Both hydrocarbons and mining industries are characterized by a high degree of innovation. In the former, for example, the introduction of hydraulic fracturing, or “fracking,” on a commercial scale has made their extraction more similar to conventional mining. By contrast, most innovation in mining comes in the form of low-key incremental improvements in existing processes. Disruptive technologies are uncommon. The development of solvent-extraction electro-winning in copper production stands out as an exception. It has increased processing efficiency significantly, and, as a result, production has continued to increase in spite of a decline in the quality of grades of ore mined. Mining does however show a trend toward becoming higher tech: in Western Australia iron ore mines make extensive use of driverless trucks, and more and more underground mining is being carried out remotely. The greatest challenge to governments lies in the unexpected implications of innovation for policy design. For example, unconventional oil and gas discoveries on a large scale in the United States have implications for coal use in Asia and for the prospects for new gas discoveries in East Africa.

INDIAN MINING INDUSTRY

Introduction

India holds a fair advantage in cost of production and conversion costs in steel and alumina. Its strategic location enables convenient exports to develop as well as the fast-developing Asian markets. India currently produces around 95 minerals which mainly include 10 metallic, 23 non-metallic, 3 atomic, 4 fuel and 55 minor minerals.

Rise in infrastructure development and automotive production are driving growth in the sector. Power and cement industries are also aiding growth in the metals and mining sector. Demand for iron and steel is set to continue, given the strong growth expectations for the residential and commercial building industry.

Market Size

India is the 3rd largest producer of coal. Coal production stood at 453.10 million tonnes in FY17. India has the 5th largest estimated coal reserves in the world, standing at 308.802 billion tonnes in FY16. In 2016, India contributed around 11 per cent of the world’s production of coal. India ranks 4th in terms of iron ore production globally. In FY17, production was expected to reach 175.51 million tonnes of iron ore. India has around 8 per cent of world’s deposits of iron ore.

India has become the 3rd largest steel producer in FY17 with the production of finished steel at 83.01 million tonnes. India stood as the 3rd largest crude steel producer in 2016, while its production increased to 90 million tonnes in FY16 as compared to 88 million tonnes in FY15. India accounted for 5.89% of the total steel production in the year 2016.

According to Ministry of Mines, India has the 7th largest bauxite reserves- around 2,908.85 million tonnes in FY17. Aluminium production stood at 1.7 million metric tonnes in FY17. India has vast mineral potential with mining leases granted for longer durations of 20 to 30 years.

Investments/ Developments

Cumulative FDI inflows into the mining sector between April 2000 and June 2017 stood at US$ 2.228 billion as per Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP).

- Metals and Minerals Trading Corporation of India (MMTC) Ltd is in talks with the National Mineral Development Corporation (NMDC) to sign a new five-year pact for exporting 2.6 million tonnes of iron to Japan and South Korean industries.

- Under the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act of 1957, FDI upto 100% under Automatic route is allowed for the mining and exploration of metal and non- metal ores including diamond, gold, silver and precious ores, while FDI upto 100% under Government route is allowed in for mining and mineral separation of titanium bearing minerals and its ores.
- National Aluminium Company (NALCO), a central government-owned entity, is set to join the club of million-tonne producers in the metal segment by 2020. NALCO has readied about INR 25,000 crore (US$ 3.72 billion) investments for increasing its alumina, aluminium and power production capacities.
- Adani Enterprises Ltd announced that it is ready to start work on the US$ 16.5 billion Carmichael mine. The project is expected to commence production in FY 2020-21 with an output of 25 million tonnes in the first phase.
- Hindustan Zinc announced that it will set up its first Zinc Fumer Plant in Rajasthan by 2018 with an investment of INR 570 crore (US$ 83.2 million). This plant will extract metals from waste and will have an annual production capacity of 3,000 tonnes.
- The Government of India is taking steps boost the country's domestic steel sector and raise its capacity to 300 million tonnes (MT) by 2030-31.
- JSW Steel proposed constructing a slurry pipeline project to transport iron ore and coal at competitive prices in Karnataka with an investment of INR 2,100 crore (US$ 3.36 billion). JSW Steel is currently operating a 12-million tonnes per annum integrated steel plant in the area.
- Mangal Credit and Fincorp announced plans of diversifying in iron ore mining by acquiring a mine near Goa. The 21 hectare mine consists of iron ore reserve worth US$ 223.11 million.

Government Initiatives

- The reduction in local and inter-state tax rates after implementation of Goods and Services Tax (GST) is expected to result in savings of Rs 6,000 crore (US$ 937.77 million) for customers of Coal India which include NTPC, Korba State Power Houses of Gujrat, Rajasthan, and Chattisgarh and other State Electricity Boards along with private consumers like Adani, Lanco & Balco etc. while increased production in previous three years has saved the country Rs 25,900 crore (US$ 4.05 billion) in foreign exchange by reduction in imports.
- In the coming five years, Mineral Exploration Corporation Limited (MECL) is planning to invest around Rs 208 crores (US$ 31.82 million) for the upgradation and modernisation of the existing plants.
- Shri Piyush Goyal, the Union Minister of State for Power, Coal, New & Renewable Energy and Mines, launched the Mining Surveillance System (MSS) in New Delhi to establish a regime of responsive mineral administration by curbing instances of illegal mining activity through automatic remote sensing detection technology.
- National Steel Policy has been established in 2017 with the mission to provide self- sufficiency in steel production by providing policy support and guidance to private manufacturers, MSME steel producers, CPSEs and encouraging capacity additions.
- The Union Cabinet approved the National Mineral Exploration Policy (NMEP) which aims at accelerating the exploration activity through enhanced participation of the private sector. This policy focuses on making baseline geoscientific data of world standards available in the public domain, special incentives for deep- seated and concealed deposits, quick aero geophysical surveys of the country, creation of a dedicated geoscience database and quality research in public- private partnership.
- The Odisha government has been granting leases for longer durations of 20 to 30 years due to which India has seen a significant growth in minerals.
- Indirect taxes such as export duty for various minerals have been significantly reduced while import duty and custom duty for some minerals have been increased. For example, export duty on iron ore lumps with Fe content below 58% has been reduced from 10% to nil and import duty on zinc has been increased from 5% to 7.5%.

- The Government also provides fiscal incentives to companies such as one-tenth of the expenditure on prospecting, extraction and production of certain minerals during five years ending with the first year of commercial production is allowed as a deduction from the total income.
- In captive mining for coal, companies are permitted to set up coal processing plants such as washeries that are for specified end uses, including the setting up of power plants, fertilizers and steel units.

Road Ahead

There is significant scope for new mining capacities in iron ore, bauxite and coal and considerable opportunities for future discoveries of sub- surface deposits. The Ministry of Steel aims to increase the steel production capacity to 142.3 million tonnes by the end of 2017 indicating new opportunities in the sector. In February 2017, the country's coal ministry allowed private companies to engage into mining activities for commercial purposes.

Infrastructure projects continue to provide lucrative business opportunities for steel, zinc and aluminium producers. India's infrastructure sector is expected to grow at a CAGR of 35.65% over the period FY 2008-25. In the Union Budget 2017-18, the Government of India has allocated US$ 62.16 billion for infrastructure.

Iron and steel make up a core component of the real estate sector. Demand for these metals is set to continue given strong growth expectations for the residential and commercial building industry. Total housing shortage in the country stood at about 18.78 million at the start of the Twelfth Five Year Plan. This provides a big investment opportunity for residential building construction in coming years.

STRONG GROWTH IN INDIA'S METALS AND MINING SECTOR OVER THE YEARS

In FY16, India had 1,878 operative mines – excluding mining areas for minor minerals, crude petroleum, natural gas & atomic minerals.

Much of the above growth in the industry's value can be attributed to higher prices given that production volume growth was relatively lower at 3.2 per cent (total production stood at 716.3 million metric tonnes)

During 2011-16, value of ore & mineral imports into India witnessed a negative growth at a CAGR of -0.028 per cent

By FY16, India's iron ore imports are expected to decline by 60 per cent with the considerate improvement in the domestic production market

SERVICE OFFERINGS

Our Company caters to business segments under Coal & Mineral, Coal Bed Methane, Water resource Industry and Geotechnical services details of which are given below:

1. Coal & Mineral Exploration:

Core Drilling, RC (Reverse Circulation) Drilling, DTH (Down –the-Hole) Drilling & LD (Large Diameter) Drilling are some of the main forms of Mineral Exploration Drilling. We have successfully executed various mineral exploratory projects for a wide array of minerals, like – Coal, Iron Ore, Lead, Zinc, Copper, Gold, Chromite, Manganese & Atomic Minerals, both in India and overseas.

a. Wireline core drilling-

In this type of drilling, the wire line core barrel comprises of an inner tube which is receptacle of the core, that can be lifted to the surface through the rod string, without removing the drill rod string assembly (thus increasing the yield considerably), while the coring bit and the outer tube of the core barrel remain in the bore hole, that acts as a casing to avoid the collapse of the side wall.

b. Reverse Circulation drilling

Reverse Circulation (RC) Drilling is much faster than the Wireline Drilling and is mainly carried out in hard rock formation. Unlike wireline core drilling, RC drilling produces samples of rock cuttings instead of a sample of rock core. It uses a bit attached to a down- the hole hammer, to produce a hole and comprises of rods with inner and outer tubes. The drill cuttings produced, are returned to surface through inside the rods by reverse air circulation, which are then collected in various sample bags, to be analyzed by geologists for determining the overall mineral composition of the drilled holes.

c. Large Diameter Drilling

Large diameter core drilling is recommended for bulk sampling and where core of target samples are required.

d. Directional Drilling-

Drilling for deeper target is not only costly but is also quite difficult, if it is located in various pockets of mineralized ore. A single bore hole can be plugged back at a certain depth and deviated to make new boreholes. Sometimes, target located beneath a locality, river or environmentally sensitive area, makes it necessary to locate the drilling rig some distance away. For achieving drilling in the above mentioned challenging scenarios, Directional Drilling is the most suitable option.

In Directional Drilling, Down Hole Motor (DHM) is used to steer the borehole at desired path or direction and an adjustable bend sub at the front of the DHM controls the amount of deviation. In this method only the drill bit rotates and this is driven by the positive displacement pump (power section) at the top of the DHM.

2. CBM Exploration

a) Wire Line Core drilling

Coal cores can be obtained with different techniques including conventional & wireline coring. Conventional coring is a cumbersome process, involving the removal of the entire string of drill pipes, for the recovery of the core, thereby resulting in long trip times of an hour or more. As coal samples begin to de-sorb gas while being lifted from the bottom of the well, such long trip times can result in loss of large volumes of methane gas. As an alternative, many operators now-a-days use wireline-coring technique, which can bring samples to the surface in 15 to 20 minutes, significantly reducing lost-gas volumes.

b) Coal Bed Methane (CBM)

Coal Bed Methane (CBM) or Coal-Mine Methane (CMM) is a form of natural greenhouse gas, which remains trapped in underground coal seams and is extracted, not only as a safety measure prior to mining the coal, but also for various domestic, commercial and industrial purposes. CBM is considered to be the most potential source of clean energy and hence is used as a fuel for power generation through gas fired generators.

3. CBM Production Drilling –

CBM recovery process requires drilling boreholes into a coal deposit and pumping out the ground water contained therein, thereby de-pressurizing the coal seam and thus allowing the gas to be released from the cleats & fissures of the coal matrix, up the bore well. High permeability, thick seams and high gas content are some of the crucial factors which are taken into account to evaluate the commercial viability of CBM projects. Retrieving trapped methane also helps minimize mining hazards and environmental impact.

4. Aquifer Mapping & Hydrogeological Services

Aquifer Mapping is a multi-disciplinary holistic scientific approach for aquifer characterization. Mapping of Aquifers helps to determine the quantity and the quality of groundwater in a particular area. We identify & map aquifers across the country, to quantify the available groundwater resources, and to propose plans appropriate to the scale of demand and aquifer characteristics.

We are equipped with multiple disciplines and scientific approaches, including remote sensing, hydrogeology, geophysics, hydrochemistry, drilling, groundwater modelling, and management for providing time bound & cost effective services for completion of Aquifer mapping studies.

5. Geological Services

It include geological requirements such as preparation of exploration schemes, core logging, core sampling, rock quality designation, geo technical logging , due diligence of an area, resistivity survey, magnetic survey, geological report presentation and geophysical logging.

We have Geological & Geophysical Services Division with a team of approx. 15 experienced Geoscientists, and is capable of providing on-site integrated exploration services, both for coal and other mineral resources like – Limestone, Atomic Minerals etc.

The company can provide the following geological and geophysical services to its clients:

- Preparation of Exploration Schemes
- Core Logging
- Core Sampling
- Rock Quality Designation
- Geo Technical Logging
- Geological Mapping
- Due Diligence of area
- Resistivity Survey
- Magnetic Survey
- Geophysical Logging
- Geological Report Preparation

6. Geophysical Services

It includes geophysical well logging & surface surveys like electrical & magnetic surveys for exploration of coal & minerals. These surveys help in identification of coal & minerals by identifying physical anomalies.

7. Workover rig Services

Workover rig Services are required for a lot of applications i.e. to help prolong the productive life of an oil or gas well, routine repair and maintenance of oil and gas wells, recompletion of wells, re-drilling, and plug operations.

8. Motorised Directional Drilling Services

Motorized directional drilling is a technique through which the core hole is oriented to a particular path (direction) to hit the subsurface mineralized zone. In this technique an in-hole motor is lowered at a particular depth in the hole through which the drilling is done to achieve a pre-decided angle & direction. The motor is then pulled out and normal core drilling is resumed.

9. Horizontal Directional Drilling Services

Horizontal directional drilling or HDD, is a trenchless method of installing underground pipe, conduit, or cable in a shallow arc using a drilling rig with an inclined ramp. Directional boring is used when trenching or excavating is not practical. It is suitable for jobs including road, landscape and river crossings, for infrastructure development such as telecommunications, power cable conduits, water lines, sewer lines, gas lines, oil lines, product pipelines, and environmental remediation casings. It is used for crossing waterways, roadways, shore approaches, congested areas, environmentally sensitive areas, and areas where other methods are costlier or not possible. It is used instead of other techniques to provide less traffic disruption, lower cost, deeper and/or longer installation, no access pit, shorter completion times, directional capabilities, and environmental safety.

10. Topographical Surveys & Geological Mapping

The survey has been done to map the topography of the area so that the depth of the mineral deposit is ascertained with respect to the mean sea level. Further the topography of the area is incorporated in the geological model. Our company has carried out topographic surveys for detail coal exploration for coal blocks done by us Central Mine Planning and Design Institute.

11. Geophysical Well Logging & Surface Geophysical Surveys.

Geophysical logging is carried out in drilled wells or boreholes to identify the formation, their depth, thickness & quality. This is the most accurate method for mineral identification.

Surface Geophysical Surveys are carried out to identify physical anomalies for identification of minerals, faults & structural features.

12. Geo-Modelling & Geological Report Preparation

Geo-Modeling & Geological Report is presentation of processed & interpretation of exploration data collected during the exploration program. The processing is being carried out using geological modelling software & interpretation is carried out by experienced geoscientists. The report is presented in the format as per the client requirement.

13. Exploration Planning & Design

Before the start of an integrated exploration program, a detail exploration plan is designed based on the existing information of the area. The data is processed and an exploration plan is prepared proposing required drilling, surveys etc. and presented to client for their acceptance.

The Standalone financial statements are prepared and presented under the historical cost convention and evaluated on a going-concern basis using the accrual system of accounting in accordance with the accounting principles generally accepted in India (Indian GAAP) and the requirements of the Companies Act, 1956 (up to March 31, 2014), and notified sections, schedules and rules of the Companies Act 2013 (with effect from April 01, 2014), including the Accounting Standards as prescribed by the Companies (Accounting Standards) Rules, 2006 as per section 211(3C) of the Companies Act, 1956 (which are deemed to be applicable as Section 133 of the Companies Act, 2013 (“the Act”) read with Rule 7 of Companies (Accounts) Rules, 2014).

A. USE OF ESTIMATES

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) requires the management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported balances of assets and liabilities and disclosures relating to the contingent liabilities, if any, as at the date of the financial statements and reported amounts of income and expenses during the year. Examples of such estimates include provision for income tax and the useful lives of fixed assets. The difference between the actual results and estimates are recognized in the period in which results are known or materialized.

- iv) Interest, other borrowing costs and administrative expenditure are not included in the cost of inventories as considered as not relating to bringing the inventories to their present location and condition.

c) Cost formulas

The cost of inventories been assigned by using the first-in, first-out (FIFO) formula to reflect the fairest possible approximation to the cost incurred in bringing the items of inventory to their present location. This formula assumes that the items of inventory which were purchased or produced first are consumed or sold first, and consequently the items remaining in inventory at the end of the period are those most recently purchased or produced.

d) Estimate of Net Realizable Value

Estimates of net realisable value are based on the most reliable evidence available at the time the estimates are made as to the amount the inventories are expected to realise. These estimates take into consideration fluctuations of price or cost directly relating to events occurring after the balance sheet date to the extent that such events confirm the conditions existing at the balance sheet date.

An assessment is made of net realisable value as at each balance sheet date

C. FIXED ASSETS

Cost includes purchase price and all other attributable cost to bring the assets to its working condition for the intended use. Subsequent expenditures related to an item of tangible asset are added to its book value only if they increase the future benefits from the existing asset beyond its previously assessed standard of performance. Actuarial gains and losses for the defined benefit plans are recognized in full in the period in which they occur in the statement of profit and loss.

I. BORROWING COSTS

Borrowing cost includes interest and amortization of ancillary costs incurred in connection with the arrangement of borrowings. Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition, construction or production of an asset that necessarily takes a substantial period of time to get ready for its intended use or sale are capitalized as part of the cost of the respective asset. All other borrowing costs are expensed in the period they occur.

J. SEGMENT ACCOUNTING

(i) Business Segment

K. EARNINGS PER SHARE:

In determining the Earnings Per share, the company considers the net profit after tax which does not include any post tax effect of any extraordinary / exceptional item. The number of shares used in computing basic earnings per share is the weighted average number of shares outstanding during the period.

The number of shares used in computing Diluted earnings per share comprises the weighted average number of shares considered for computing Basic Earnings per share and also the weighted number of equity shares that would have been issued on conversion of all potentially dilutive shares.

In the event of issue of bonus shares/Share split, the number of equity shares outstanding is increased without an increase in the resources. The number of Equity shares outstanding before the event is adjusted for the proportionate change in the number of equity shares outstanding as if the event had occurred at the beginning of the earliest reporting period.

L. ACCOUNTING FOR TAXES ON INCOME

Tax expense comprises of current and deferred tax. Current income tax is measured at the amount expected to be paid to the tax authorities in accordance with the Income-tax Act, 1961 enacted in India. The tax rates and tax laws used to compute the amount are those that are enacted or substantively enacted, at the reporting date.

(i) Deferred income taxes reflect the impact of timing differences between taxable income and accounting income originating during the current year and reversal of timing differences for the earlier years. Deferred tax is measured using the tax rates and the tax laws enacted or substantively enacted at the reporting date.

(ii) Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for all taxable timing differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for deductible timing differences only to the extent that there is reasonable certainty that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which such deferred tax assets can be realized. In situations where the Company has unabsorbed depreciation or carry forward tax losses, all deferred tax assets are recognized only if there is virtual certainty supported by convincing evidence that they can be realized against future taxable profits.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets are reviewed at each reporting date. The company writes-down the carrying amount of a deferred tax asset to the extent that it is no longer reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which deferred tax asset can be realized. Any such write-down is reversed to the extent that it becomes reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available.

M. IMPAIRMENT OF ASSETS

The company assesses at each reporting date whether there is an indication that an asset may be impaired. If any indication exists, or when annual impairment testing for an asset is required, the company estimates the asset's recoverable amount. An asset's (including goodwill) recoverable amount is the higher of an assets net selling price and its value in use. The recoverable amount is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. In determining net selling price, recent market transactions are taken into account, if available. If no such transactions can be identified, an appropriate valuation model is used.

(ii) After impairment, depreciation/ amortization is provided on the revised carrying amount of the asset over its remaining useful life.

N. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES AND PROVISIONS

Provisions are recognized only when there is a present obligation as a result of past events and when a reliable estimate of the amount of obligation can be made.

Contingent Liability is disclosed for

- a) Possible obligation which will be confirmed only by future events not wholly within the control of the Company or
- b) Present obligations arising from the past events where it is not probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation or a reliable estimate of the amount of the obligation cannot be made.
- c) Contingent Assets are not recognized in the financial statements since this may result in the recognition of income that may never be realized.

A disclosure for a contingent liability is made when there is a possible obligation or a present obligation that may, but probably will not, require an outflow of resources. Where there is a possible obligation or a present obligation that the likelihood of outflow of resources is remote, no provision or disclosure is made.

16. CASH FLOW:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) requires the management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported balances of assets and liabilities and disclosures relating to the contingent liabilities, if any, as at the date of the financial statements and reported amounts of income and expenses during the year. Examples of such estimates include provision for income tax and the useful lives of fixed assets.

The difference between the actual results and estimates are recognized in the period in which results are known or materialized.

- vi) The costs of purchase consist of the purchase price including duties and taxes (other than those subsequently recoverable by the company from the taxing authorities), freight inwards and other expenditure directly attributable to the acquisition. Trade discounts, rebates, duty drawbacks and other similar items are deducted in determining the costs of purchase.
- vii) Other costs are included in the cost of inventories only to the extent that they are incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition.
- viii) Interest, other borrowing costs and administrative expenditure are not included in the cost of inventories as considered as not relating to bringing the inventories to their present location and condition.

c) Cost formulas

The cost of inventories been assigned by using the first-in, first-out (FIFO) formula to reflect the fairest possible approximation to the cost incurred in bringing the items of inventory to their present location. This formula assumes that the items of inventory which were purchased or produced first are consumed or sold first, and consequently the items remaining in inventory at the end of the period are those most recently purchased or produced.

d) Estimate of Net Realizable Value

Estimates of net realisable value are based on the most reliable evidence available at the time the estimates are made as to the amount the inventories are expected to realise. These estimates take into consideration fluctuations of price or cost directly relating to events occurring after the balance sheet date to the extent that such events confirm the conditions existing at the balance sheet date.

An assessment is made of net realisable value as at each balance sheet date

C. FIXED ASSETS

Fixed assets are stated at historical cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Cost includes purchase price and all other attributable cost to bring the assets to its working condition for the intended use. Cost includes cost of purchase, construction of foundation, technical services related to installation, borrowing costs and other overheads relating to projects.

- iv. The company operates defined benefit plan for its employees, viz., gratuity and leave encashment liability. The costs of providing benefits under this plan are determined on the basis of actuarial valuation at each yearend. Actuarial valuation is carried out using the projected unit credit method made at the end of each reporting date. Actuarial gains and losses for the defined benefit plans are recognized in full in the period in which they occur in the statement of profit and loss.

I. BORROWING COSTS

Borrowing cost includes interest and amortization of ancillary costs incurred in connection with the arrangement of borrowings. Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition, construction or production of an asset that necessarily takes a substantial period of time to get ready for its intended use or sale are capitalized as part of the cost of the respective asset. The number of shares used in computing Diluted earnings per share comprises the weighted average number of shares considered for computing Basic Earnings per share and also the weighted number of equity shares that would have been issued on conversion of all potentially dilutive shares.

In the event of issue of bonus shares/Share split, the number of equity shares outstanding is increased without an increase in the resources. The number of Equity shares outstanding before the event is adjusted for the proportionate change in the number of equity shares outstanding as if the event had occurred at the beginning of the earliest reporting period.

L. ACCOUNTING FOR TAXES ON INCOME

Tax expense comprises of current and deferred tax. Current income tax is measured at the amount expected to be paid to the tax authorities in accordance with the Income-tax Act, 1961 enacted in India. The tax rates and tax laws used to compute the amount are those that are enacted or substantively enacted, at the reporting date.

(i) Deferred income taxes reflect the impact of timing differences between taxable income and accounting income originating during the current year and reversal of timing differences for the earlier years. Deferred tax is measured using the tax rates and the tax laws enacted or substantively enacted at the reporting date.

(ii) Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for all taxable timing differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for deductible timing differences only to the extent that there is reasonable certainty that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which such deferred tax assets can be realized. In situations where the Company has unabsorbed depreciation or carry forward tax losses, all deferred tax assets are recognized only if there is virtual certainty supported by convincing evidence that they can be realized against future taxable profits.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets are reviewed at each reporting date. The company writes-down the carrying amount of a deferred tax asset to the extent that it is no longer reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which deferred tax asset can be realized. Any such write-down is reversed to the extent that it becomes reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available.

M. IMPAIRMENT OF ASSETS

The company assesses at each reporting date whether there is an indication that an asset may be impaired. If any indication exists, or when annual impairment testing for an asset is required, the company estimates the asset's recoverable amount. An asset's (including goodwill) recoverable amount is the higher of an assets net selling price and its value in use. The recoverable amount is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. In determining net selling price, recent market transactions are taken into account, if available. If no such transactions can be identified, an appropriate valuation model is used.

(ii) After impairment, depreciation/ amortization is provided on the revised carrying amount of the asset over its remaining useful life.

N. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES AND PROVISIONS

Provisions are recognized only when there is a present obligation as a result of past events and when a reliable estimate of the amount of obligation can be made.

Contingent Liability is disclosed for

- a) Possible obligation which will be confirmed only by future events not wholly within the control of the Company or
- b) Present obligations arising from the past events where it is not probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation or a reliable estimate of the amount of the obligation cannot be made.
- c) Contingent Assets are not recognized in the financial statements since this may result in the recognition of income that may never be realized.

A disclosure for a contingent liability is made when there is a possible obligation or a present obligation that may, but probably will not, require an outflow of resources. Where there is a possible obligation or a present obligation that the likelihood of outflow of resources is remote, no provision or disclosure is made.

16. CASH FLOW:

Cash flows are reported using the indirect method, whereby profit before tax is adjusted for the effects of transactions of non-cash nature, any deferrals or accruals of past or future operating cash receipts or payments and item of income or expenses associated with investing or financing cash flows. 4.1.4.1 Maximum and Minimum Bid Size

- a) The Bidder may Bid for the desired number of Equity Shares at a specific price. Bids by Retail Individual Investors, Employees and Retail Individual Shareholders must be for such number of shares so as to ensure that the Bid Amount less Discount (as applicable), payable by the Bidder does not exceed Rs. 200,000.
- b) In case the Bid Amount exceeds Rs. 200,000 due to revision of the Bid or any other reason, the Bid may be considered for allocation under the Non-Institutional Category (with it not being eligible for Discount), then such Bid may be rejected if it is at the Cut-off Price.
- c) For NRIs, a Bid Amount of up to Rs. 200,000 may be considered under the Retail Category for the purposes of allocation and a Bid Amount exceeding Rs. 200,000 may be considered under the Non-Institutional Category for the purposes of allocation.
- d) Bids by QIBs and NIIs must be for such minimum number of shares such that the Bid Amount exceeds Rs. 200,000 and in multiples of such number of Equity Shares thereafter, as may be disclosed in the Bid cum Application Form and the RHP/Prospectus, or as advertised by the Issuer, as the case may be. Non-Institutional Investors and QIBs are not allowed to Bid at Cut off Price.
- e) RII may revise or withdraw their bids until Bid/Offer Closing Date. QIBs and NII's cannot withdraw or lower their Bids (in terms of quantity of Equity Shares or the Bid Amount) at any stage after Bidding and are required to pay the Bid Amount upon submission of the Bid.
- f) In case the Bid Amount reduces to Rs. 200,000 or less due to a revision of the Price Band, Bids by the Non-Institutional Investors who are eligible for allocation in the Retail Category would be considered for allocation under the Retail Category.
- g) For Anchor Investors, if applicable, the Bid Amount shall be least Rs 10 crores. One-third of the Anchor Investor Portion shall be reserved for domestic Mutual Funds, subject to valid Bids being received from domestic Mutual Funds at or above the price at which allocation is being done to other Anchor Investors. Anchor Investors cannot withdraw their Bids or lower the size of their Bids (in terms of quantity of Equity Shares or the Bid Amount) at any stage after the Anchor Investor Bid/Offer Period and are required to pay the Bid Amount at the time of submission of the Bid. In case the Anchor Investor Issue Price is lower than the Issue Price, the balance amount shall be payable as per the pay-in-date mentioned in the revised CAN. In case the Issue Price is lower than the Anchor Investor Offer Price, the amount in excess of the Issue Price paid by the Anchor Investors shall not be refunded to them.
- h) A Bid cannot be submitted for more than the issue size.
- I) The maximum Bid by any Bidder including QIB Bidder should not exceed the investment limits prescribed for them under the applicable laws.
- II) The price and quantity options submitted by the Bidder in the Bid cum Application Form may be treated as optional bids from the Bidder and may not be cumulated. After determination of the issue Price, the number of Equity Shares Bid for by a Bidder at or above the issue Price may be considered for Allotment and the rest of the Bid(s), irrespective of the Bid Amount may automatically become invalid. This is not applicable in case of FPOs undertaken through Alternate Book Building Process.

4.1.4.2 Multiple Bids

- (a) Bidder should submit only one Bid cum Application Form.  - i. Bids by Reserved Categories Bidding in their respective Reservation Portion as well as bids made by them in the Offer portion in public category.

RESTRICTIONS ON FOREIGN OWNERSHIP OF INDIAN SECURITIES

Foreign investment in Indian securities is regulated through the Industrial Policy, 1991 of the Government of India and Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (“FEMA”). While the Industrial Policy, 1991 prescribes the limits and the conditions subject to which foreign investment can be made in different sectors of the Indian economy, FEMA regulates the precise manner in which such investment may be made. Under the Industrial Policy, unless specifically restricted, foreign investment is freely permitted in all sectors of Indian economy up to any extent and without any prior approvals, but the foreign investor is required to follow certain prescribed procedures for making such investment. The government bodies responsible for granting foreign investment approvals are the Reserve Bank of India (“RBI”) and Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion, Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Government of India (“DIPP”).

The Government of India, from time to time, has made policy pronouncements on Foreign Direct Investment (“FDI”) through press notes and press releases. The Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion, Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Government of India (“DIPP”), has issued consolidated FDI Policy Circular of 2017 (“FDI Policy 2017”), which with effect from August 28, 2017, consolidates and supersedes all previous press notes, press releases and clarifications on FDI Policy issued by the DIPP that were in force. The Government proposes to update the consolidated circular on FDI policy once every year and therefore, FDI Policy 2017 will be valid until the DIPP issues an updated circular.

The Reserve Bank of India (“RBI”) also issues Master Circular on Foreign Investment in India every year. Presently, FDI in India is being governed by Master Circular on Foreign Investment dated July 01, 2015 as updated from time to time by RBI. In terms of the Master Circular, an Indian company may issue fresh shares to people resident outside India (who is eligible to make investments in India, for which eligibility criteria are as prescribed). Such fresh issue of shares shall be subject to inter-alia, the pricing guidelines prescribed under the Master Circular. The Indian company making such fresh issue of shares would be subject to the reporting requirements, inter-alia with respect to consideration for issue of shares and also subject to making certain filings including filing of Form FC-GPR.

Under the current FDI Policy of 2017, foreign direct investment in micro and small enterprises is subject to sectoral caps, entry routes and other sectoral regulations. At present 100 % foreign direct investment through automatic route is permitted in the sector in which our Company operates. Therefore applicable foreign investment up to 100% is permitted in our company under automatic route.

In case of investment in sectors through Government Route approval from competent authority as mentioned in Chapter 4 of the FDI Policy 2017 has to be obtained by the Company.

The transfer of shares between an Indian resident to a non-resident does not require the prior approval of the RBI, subject to fulfilment of certain conditions as specified by DIPP/RBI, from time to time. Such conditions include: (i) where the transfer of shares requires the prior approval of the Government as per the extant FDI policy provided that: a) the requisite approval of the Government has been obtained; and b) the transfer of shares adheres with the pricing guidelines and documentation requirements as specified by the Reserve Bank of India from time to time.; (ii) where the transfer of shares attract SEBI (SAST) Regulations subject to the adherence with the pricing guidelines and documentation requirements as specified by Reserve Bank of India from time to time.; (iii) where the transfer of shares does not meet the pricing guidelines under the FEMA, 1999 provided that: a) The resultant FDI is in compliance with the extant FDI policy and FEMA regulations in terms of sectoral caps, conditionalities (such as minimum capitalization, etc.), reporting requirements, documentation etc.; b) The pricing for the transaction is compliant with the specific/explicit, extant and relevant SEBI regulations/guidelines (such as IPO, Book building, block deals, delisting, exit, open offer/substantial acquisition/SEBI SAST); and Chartered Accountants Certificate to the effect that compliance with the relevant SEBI regulations/guidelines as indicated above is attached to the form FC-TRS to be filed with the AD bank and iv) where the investee company is in the financial sector provided that: a) Any ‘fit and proper/due diligence’ requirements as regards the non-resident investor as stipulated by the respective financial sector regulator, from time to time, have been complied with; and b) The FDI policy and FEMA regulations in terms of sectoral caps, conditionalities (such as minimum capitalization, pricing, etc.), reporting requirements, documentation etc., are complied with. As per the existing policy of the Government of India, OCBs cannot participate in this Issue and in accordance with the extant FDI guidelines on sectoral caps, pricing guidelines etc. as amended by Reserve bank of India, from time to time. Investors are advised to confirm their eligibility under the relevant laws before investing and / or subsequent purchase or sale transaction in the Equity Shares of Our Company. Investors will not offer, sell, pledge or transfer the Equity Shares of our Company to any person who is not eligible under applicable laws, rules, regulations, guidelines. Our Company, the Underwriters and their respective directors, officers, agents, affiliates and representatives, as applicable, accept no responsibility or liability for advising any investor on whether such investor is eligible to acquire Equity Shares of our Company.
